Boston's Series Hopes Ride on Voiselle

Indians Score Run In Third

Cleveland Picks Lemon to Pitch

BULLETIN

BOSTON — Cleveland's Indians and the Boston Braves went into the fifth inning of today's World Series game with the score 1-1. Cleveland scored in the third inning, and Boston in the fourth.

BOSTON—Cocky and confident, the aroused Boston Braves came back home today for the deciding game—or games—of the 1948 World Series.

The Braves routed Bobby Feller yesterday afternoon in Cleveland, 11 to 5, to get a new series lease on life. A victory today for Boston would tie up the fall classic and make it anybody's world championship.

Billy Southworth, the percentage-playing manager of the Braves, gambles on Big Bill Voiselle today to pitch the Braves to victory and the series to its seven-game hilt. The Indians will counter with Bob Lemon, who tamed the Bostons in the second game last Thursday in the Braves' park, 4 to 1.

Gray and muggy, the day seemed built for hitting. So far neither team has been able to do much in the way of consistent batting in Boston. In the first two games only 22 hits rattled off the Cleveland and Boston bats.

SECOND SERIES GAME

Southworth had to dig down deep in his mound corps in giving the nod to Voiselle. He was making a desperation move. Voiselle had been something less than sensational in the late stages of the pennant campaign and had been relegated to bull pen duty.

It will be Voiselle's second series appearance. He went to the relief of Warren Spahn in the second contest and yielded only one hit in three and two-thirds innings. During the regular season, Big Bill won 13 and lost 13.

Lemon's second game victory was his 21st against 13 defeats. He allowed eight hits in his 4-to-1 victory and all of them were singles. The converted infielder-outfielder walked three and struck out five.

The Indians still ruled strong favorites—20 to 13. Out front three-games-to- two, Cleveland needs only one more victory to capture the baseball championship.

SHOWERS SEEN

Scattered showers were predicted for this afternoon—but the district forecaster said they wouldn't be heavy enough to interfere with the game.

A noisy crowd greeted the Boston team at the railroad station to cheer the Braves' great comeback yesterday when they bounced off the ropes with a vengeance to wallop the Indians in the most one-sided game of the series to date.

Cleveland, holding a 3-2 edge in series games, was confident. Hank Greenberg, vice-president of the club, said:

"We're going home with it tonight."

He made no comment on published reports he was buying the club as a syndicate member.

BIG DAY SUNDAY

Yesterday's history - making crowd was treated to a fine display of offensive baseball. The 86,288 paying customers watched batsmen slap 18 hits, including five home runs. Third baseman Bob Elliott had two of the three Boston homers. He drove in four runs.

It was baseball's greatest assemblage as well as a new series record. Cleveland also figured in the other two fan marks. The previous top during seasonal play was contributed by the Indians and Athletics in a June 20 doubleheader. That crowd reached 82,781.

Saturday's game drew 81,897 which broke the mark of 74,065 set in Yankee stadium last year.

Collects On Receipt 26 Years Old

A deposit on a garbage can taken by the city garbage department 26 years ago was returned today. Mrs. Frank Forshee, 539 Maple street, was given $2 after she returned a receipt for that amount which she paid on April 4, 1922.

The money was for the use of a city-supplied garbage can at 115 Glenwood boulevard. The receipt was signed by former garbage department head, William Watkins.

In those days, the city supplied a garbage can and returned the $2 deposit when the service was ended.

Truman To Speak Today In Willard

Dewey Will Give Views on Labor

President Harry Truman is scheduled to make a brief talk from the rear platform of his 17-car special train at Willard at 4:55 p. m. today before proceeding to Akron where he will make a major address tonight in the armory.

This will be the President's third appearance in this area in the past four months. He has appeared twice at Crestline during his campaign tours.

At 7 a. m. today, the presidential train arrived at Cincinnati where Mr. Truman charged Gov. Thomas E. Dewey, his GOP rival, refused "to tell the country where he stands on any of the issues" in which "the people are interested."

Of Sen. Robert A. Taft, he said: "I like him personally. I know where he stands . . . Taft stands for welfare at the top, not at the bottom."

Former Gov. Frank J. Lausche joined the President's party at Cincinnati and the train proceeded to scheduled stops at Hamilton, Dayton, Sidney, Lima, Ottawa, Deshler, Fostoria, and Willard.

TALKS ON LABOR

The Akron speech is to be devoted to labor policy.

Meanwhile, Gov. Dewey campaigned into Pennsylvania and the midwest today, convinced that President Truman's "mission to Moscow" idea has critically injured America's role in foreign affairs.

Dewey launched the second tour of his GOP presidential campaign after asserting that the United States will back the United Nations and its western allies in the current showdown with Russia over Berlin.

Dewey's statement was aimed bluntly as an answer to Mr. Truman's aborted plan to send Chief Justice Fred M. Vinson to Moscow to deal directly with Marshal Stalin.

The Republican candidate will discuss labor legislation for the first time in his campaign at Pittsburgh tonight, after talking at Erie, Sharon, New Castle and Rochester, Pa. His eight-day, nine-state trip will take him as far west as Oklahoma and north to Minnesota.

Board Cancels Anti-Trust Proceedings

WASHINGTON — (INS) — The Federal Reserve board today cancelled indefinitely anti-trust proceedings against the Transamerica corporation, huge west coast holding firm.

Announcement of the cancellation was made by Transamerica officials after Federal Judge T. Alan Goldsborough ordered the Reserve board to show why it should not be required to specify the facts behind its anti-trust complaint.

The hearings were scheduled to start tomorrow.

The board charged in a complaint that Transamerica built up a credit monopoly by placing directors on bank boards owned by the Bank of America National Trust and Savings Accounts.

Ohioan Dies at 106

ADA, O.—(AP)— Mrs. Mary Ann Naus, 106, one of Ohio's oldest residents, died Saturday at the home of a daughter, Mrs. Stanton King, in the village of Forest. She would have been 107 November 19.

Second Tragedy at Tiro Rail Crossing Proves That Village Has Conscience

TIRO — The people of this Crawford county village showed that their consciences were still good.

An Indianapolis truck driver, T. E. Compton, 26, was injured fatally yesterday afternoon at the Pennsylvania railroad crossing on State Route 98, outside of town. His cargo of toiletries and phonograph records was broken and scattered in the crash with a passenger train.

Last January Ovilla Bromely of Pittsfield, Mass., was killed there and his cargo of tools and sporting goods spilled over the roadside. Almost everything disappeared.

Almost everything was returned a week later, after Tiro ministers had declared a "conscience week" and put out boxes where things could be quietly dropped. The ministers said they wanted to redeem Tiro's good name.

Yesterday there was a crowd out at the wreck while the Tiro fire department fought the flames that drove Compton out of his cab, his clothing ablaze.

But the cargo was stacked by the roadside. Nothing was missing.

Compton, the father of three children, was taken to the Dye funeral home in Shelby. He died at the Shelby Memorial hospital at 10 p. m.

Besides his wife, Virginia, and the three children, Compton leaves his father and mother, all of Indianapolis, Ind.

The body will be returned tonight to Indianapolis for services and burial.

NEWEST, BIGGEST BOMBER — Three B-36 bombers fly in over Fort Worth, Tex., as the Air Force showed its newest and largest operational bomber. Gen. George C. Slots Ban Is Upheld

Overtime Wage Issue Also OK'd

WASHINGTON—(AP)—The Supreme Court today upheld the right of states to ban slot machines, pin ball machines and similar devices.

A brief order unanimously affirmed a decision by a special three-judge Federal court in Greenville, S. C., that the U.S. Constitution does not prohibit the South Carolina legislature from declaring such machines illegal gambling devices. The Supreme Court's refusal to review has the effect of affirming the decision.

WASHINGTON — (U.P.) — The Supreme Court today reaffirmed its controversial decision authorizing overtime pay for workers who already get high premium pay for working undesirable hours.

The court denied an appeal by the government for reconsideration of the 5 to 3 decision handed down last June 7. The decision was made in the case of some longshoremen who sought back overtime wages under wartime government contracts.

Critics of the ruling have said it authorizes "overtime on overtime." They claim its effects will be felt in many industries besides longshoring.

In the government petition for rehearing, Solicitor General Philip B. Perlman said the court's view of overtime premiums "is not only erroneous but its application will be virtually impossible in some industries."

Pleads Not Guilty

SPRINGFIELD —(INS)—Dwight David Tudor, 26-year-old confessed slayer of Mary Page, 14, of Springfield, pleaded innocent by reason of insanity upon arraignment today. Tudor, a Columbus filling station attendant, was arraigned on first-degree murder charges.

250 Workers To Attend

Kick-Off Breakfast To Open Chest Drive

More than 250 workers in Mansfield's 1948 Community Chest fund-raising campaign have received invitations to the kick-off breakfast scheduled for Monday, Oct. 18, at 8:30 a. m., in the ballroom of the Mansfield-Leland hotel.

As in the past three years, workers will be the guests of W. A. Brandenberg and the Brandenberg Chevrolet company for the event.

Miss Janet Kelly is serving as chairman of the affair, at which H. V. Tom, president and manager of the Zanesville Credit Bureau, will be guest speaker. Tom has spoken here on several occasions and is considered an inspirational speaker.

Paul Endriss has written two campaign songs for the workers, with group singing to be led by Major William Jones of the Salvation Army, accompanied at the piano by Earl Black.

Novel floral decorations for the serving tables are being planned by a committee from the newly-organized Agnes Paulsen Garden club, with Mrs. Robert Murphy as chairman, assisted by Mrs. Robert Coe, president of the club, Mrs. Harold Williams and Mrs. J. H. Herring.

START SOLICITATION

At the close of the breakfast, workers will begin their city-wide solicitation for this year's goal of $122,635. It was stated that a total of 500 workers will participate in the drive, but only about 250 will attend the Kick-Off breakfast as many find it impossible to get away from their jobs for the affair.

Folders containing 14 most-often asked questions regarding the Community Chest and its functions will be distributed to the workers along with instructions cards, it was announced.

Reports on progress of the campaign will be made daily thereafter to campaign office headquarters in the YMCA building, with first reports due Wednesday.

Churchill Stirs Storm

LONDON — (AP) — Winston Churchill's speech, warning that World War III might spring from the Berlin crisis, evoked stormy comment among Britons over the week end.

Emanuel Shinwell, war minister in the labor government, called the wartime prime minister "a danger to peace." Health Minister Aneurin Bevan called Conservative Leader Churchill "one of the most reckless speakers in British political history."

Praise came from the conservative Daily Mail, which said Churchill's speech at Landudno, Wales, Saturday, was his greatest since he spoke at Fulton, Mo., March 5, 1946. The conservative Daily Telegraph said "if Russia seeks peace, Mr. Churchill has pointed the way."

Reds Order Drive In Key Industries

Push Organization For U. S. Sabotage

By LYLE C. WILSON

WASHINGTON —(UP)— American communists have ordered an organizing drive in basic industry areas where they best could sabotage national defense and the general economy.

They frankly describe their program as concentration for political purposes. It was outlined in detail before the 14th national convention of the communist party by Henry Winston, the American communist boss man on organizational and ideological affairs.

The program is not secret. Winston's remarks were published in the communist magazine "political affairs" which can be purchased on some newsstands for 25 cents. He said the communists were shooting first for the key industries in Illinois, Ohio, Michigan and Western Pennsylvania. Here is a revealing sentence from Winston's address in which he told how important our basic industries are to the communist program:

"One cannot conceive of successfully building the progressive (Wallace) party, of organizing an effective fight against the draft, or in defense of civil liberties, or a successful fight against war and fascism, unless this section of the working class is fully mobilized."

AID FOR SOVIET

Winston's well chosen phrases are communist lingo for the party's basic labor objective. That is to obtain control of union in great industries for the purpose of pulling political strikes in behalf of the Soviet union. Communists did just that here during the World War II prior to the time Hitler attacked Russia.

"We must particularly select for mayor concentration," Winston told the convention, "such industries as steel, auto, mining, maritime, electrical and railroad. Within these industries we must pursue a policy of concentration in key industrial towns and key plants and departments."

Winston's report was not all good news for the comrades. Too many American communists don't want to work in the heavy, sweaty industries, it seems. Winston said a lot of them will have to be persuaded to quit their light industry jobs for heavier work so that they can entice the innocent into the movement.

Only 18½ per cent of the membership now is employed in basic industry. Perhaps more significantly, Winston said that only 51 per cent of American communists were industrial workers at all and of these 11 per cent were unemployed.

Bright Weather Missing

Mansfielders were still waiting for that "bright, blue weather" October is supposed to bring.

Showers dampened workers on their way to the office or plant this morning and the mercury hovered around the 40-gree mark.

The weatherman said the same kind of weather probably will continue until Wednesday, when there is some chance that skies will clear.

Virtually every day this month has been chilly and damp with the sun breaking through only at rare intervals. So far the month even has lacked some of its usual color.

LEAVES COLORING

Leaves on hardwood trees, however, are beginning to turn, and by next Sunday the countryside should present an attractive show for motorists.

The northern Ohio forecast said skies will be partly overcast tonight and tomorrow with the mercury dangerously close to the frost mark.

The county has escaped frost damage. Average frost date here is Oct. 8, so gardeners and farmers are expecting trouble almost any time.

Mansfield's noon temperature was 43 today, only slightly higher than the low reading of 41 at 10 a. m. Yesterday's high reading was 51 degrees at 3 p. m.

Holiday Set For Miners

Lewis Gets Raise To $50,000 Yearly

CINCINNATI—(UP)—John L. Lewis today called a nationwide coal mine shutdown for election day, Nov. 2.

Opening today's session of the United Mine Workers 40th convention, Lewis directed the presidents of all bituminous and anthracite districts "to give formal notification to all operators advising them that the production of coal on election day, Nov. 2, will cease."

Lewis acted in accordance with last Friday's convention move which recommended that operations in the coal industry be suspended so that the miners can go to the polls to vote against candidates who supported the Taft-Hartley law in Congress.

The convention voted Lewis an increase of $25,000 a year to boost his annual pay to $50,000 and make him the second highest paid labor leader in the world. Only the $54,000 annual pay of James C. Petrillo of the American Federation of Musicians (AFL) is higher.

Salaries of Vice President Thomas Kennedy and Secretary-Treasurer John Owens were raised from $18,000 to $40,000 a year. Those of executive board members were boosted to $1,000 a month.

Lewis meanwhile mustered all his power in the convention to force adoption of a controversial dues increase that would double monthly rates for his 400,000 miners from $2 to $4.

City's Banks Close Tuesday

All Mansfield banks and most of the city's loan companies will be closed tomorrow in observance of Columbus day.

The Knights of Columbus have planned two events for the day, one at the K. of C. home on Sherman avenue and the other at the Mansfield-Leland hotel.

Tomorrow night members of the Third degree will hold a smoker, with a boxing show to be put on by boys from the Friendly House and an open house for members and families.

Members of the Fourth degree will hold a dance at the Mansfield-Leland hotel.

Strike Shuts Down Ohio Rubber Plant

DAYTON—(INS)—The Dayton Rubber company was paralyzed today by a strike of 1,400 members of local 178, CIO-United Rubber Workers.

The employes struck after they voted to reject a five-point contract proposal by the company.

Proposal Goes To Mediators

Marshall Heads Back to Paris

PARIS—(AP)—The United States, Britain and France said today they are "not unwilling" to accept a Berlin settlement calling for combined lifting of the blockade and meeting of the big four foreign ministers council on the whole German question.

A British-American spokesman told reporters this was the sense of a note delivered by the western powers to Argentine Foreign Minister Juan Atilio Bramuglia, who has been heading up a six-nation effort to mediate the east-west deadlock in the United Nations security council over Berlin.

There was, however, no immediate indication of Russia's attitude on this idea.

This, it is assumed, is because Deputy Foreign Minister Andrei Y. Vishinsky is waiting for instructions from the Kremlin. He transmitted to Moscow Friday a set of questions put to him by Bramuglia, informants said.

GIVE ULTIMATUM

Bramuglia saw Dr. Philip C. Jessup of the United States, Sir Alexander Cadogan of Britain, and Alexandre Parodi of France yesterday and asked them a number of similar questions.

Earlier, an American spokesman said the western powers had informed the security council's "neutral six" that no mediation of the Berlin crisis could succeed unless the Russians lifted the blockade first.

Meanwhile, Secretary of State Marshall heads back for Paris hopeful his weekend's work with President Truman has averted a major American setback in the cold war with Russia.

Marshall was expected to take off around mid-day, thus winding up a critical period in which he and the President decided (a) To give the world an official version of the proposed Vinson mission to Moscow and (b) Underline that the whole project has been abandoned.

MAINTAINS UNITY

As a result, the United States was able once again to present to the world a picture of undivided determination in international affairs.

For one thing, reports of a split between Mr. Truman and his secretary of state were formally denied.

And—despite sharp Republican criticism of the President's role in the incident—GOP support for this country's bi-partisan foreign policy at the United Nations sessions in general and on the Berlin crisis in particular was publicly reaffirmed.

Gov. Thomas E. Dewey, the Republican presidential nominee, made the first move in this direction. It came roughly 24 hours after the disclosure by Mr. Truman himself that he had considered sending Chief Justice Fred M. Vinson to Moscow but had been dissuaded by Marshall.

Dewey issued a statement at Albany declaring that the American people "are in fact united in their foreign policy."

Hail Unity On Policy

PARIS —(INS)— Western delegates to the United Nations hailed the Dewey-Vandenberg statements today affirming western unity in dealing with the Russians.

British and French circles commented that the statements went a long way toward repairing the damage done by President Truman's plan to short-circuit the United Nations by sending a "mission to Moscow."

The victory of Secretary of State Marshall in persuading the President to abandon the proposal was seen as enabling the west to maintain a firm attitude toward the Soviets and eliminate the danger of appeasement.

Nevertheless, the disclosure of the plan to send Chief Justice Vinson to negotiate with Premier Stalin still left a hangover of shock in western circles.

Dewey Has Lead, 'Voice' Reports

WASHINGTON — (INS) — The state department's "Voice of America" has told foreign countries that President Truman appears to be trailing in the presidential race.

A broadcast beamed to foreign countries three weeks ago said the concensus in the United States was that GOP Presidential Candidate Thomas E. Dewey was well ahead of Mr. Truman in the contest.

Need Seen For Coordinating Unit In County

State Urges Organization of Welfare Council

Editor's Note: This is the last of a series of stories on recommendations of the State welfare department for improving the child care program in Richland county.

By GEORGE COMINOS

A Community Welfare council with a full-time paid executive would do much to clarify the child care picture in Richland county and eliminate confusion in handling cases, State Welfare department workers recommended following a survey of facilities in the county.

Purpose of the council, the survey report states, would be to plan and coordinate the entire community social welfare program.

"Responsibility for a welfare council program would rest with citizen leadership, but the executive would be the one who would see that the organization functioned," the report says.

Functions of the council, as outlined in the report, would be:

"Develop the interest and participation of organizations and individuals in planning.

"Build teamwork among agencies, governmental and voluntary, through joint projects of common interest.

"Provide opportunities for staff development for agencies' personnel.

"Mobilize group opinion and action around community problems.

"Assist in the development of inter-agency agreements which define responsibilities of agencies for various services.

"Assist in the adjustment of community health and welfare services to changing needs."

The welfare workers said in their report they were "repeatedly made aware of the lack of cooperation between agencies, both public and private."

The report says that "executives of agencies expressed a feeling of isolation and of working at cross-purposes with other agencies. Specifically, with respect to the Child Welfare board, this lack of coordinated community effort contributed to inadequate services for children."

Prompt and beneficial service to people in need, the report adds, "is dependent upon well-defined and clearly understood agency functions and established channels for inter-agency cooperation."

The report says that as a result

Effort Made to Trace 'Invisible Government' of Frankfurter

NEW YORK — A journalist who tries to depict the structure and reveal the character of Felix Frankfurter's "invisible government" enjoys a freedom like that of a congressional committee. He may select information here and there and piece it together. But he does not have congressional immunity, so his sense of responsibility is greater for that reason alone to say nothing of others.

The American free press has accomplished many great reforms in this way. Most of the crusades were directed against the opposition of crooked prosecutors and courts.

It is very well to say that all these inquiries should be made under juridical conditions. But observe the conduct of the department of justice in mauling and destroying the case against crooks in the federal court and the federal district attorney's office in Newark, N. J.

The department of justice is defending itself by suppressing prosecution. Would you condemn the journalistic method in this case and hand over the whole mess to the guilty people who run the machinery of the grand juries and the courts?

My presentation of the Frankfurter case follows the journalistic method rather than the juridical, but it is conscientious and truthful.

Recently I cited an article from a little New York paper called the Catholic Worker wherein the essayist recalled that in 1937 he attended a lecture in Ford hall, Boston, by Harold J. Laski, of London, formerly a lecturer at Harvard and a contemporary of Frankfurter on the faculty.

I cited routine references to Laski in the New York Times as an apologist for communism. I reported that he had lost a suit in England which turned on the question whether he had or hadn't countenanced violent revolution.

The writer in the Catholic Worker said Frankfurter, not yet a justice, introduced Laski to the Boston audience in a way "that seemed very significant to us. He declared that the day that he looked forward to in the year with the most joy was the day when Mr. Laski came to stay with him in his home."

Frankfurter not only lobbied himself onto the Supreme court but lobbied his senescent old friend Henry L. Stimson into the war department after Alf Landon had angrily spurned Roosevelt's attempt to seduce him as he had seduced the vain and flabby Frank Knox into the navy department, and simply absorb his political opposition.

We know that Roert P. Patterson, a nominal Republican, became assistant secretary, undersecretary and finally, in 1945, secretary of war.

Patterson is an alumnus of Harvard law school, whose graduates literally infested the government. And the army under Stimson and Patterson deliberately infected millions of recruits with essentials of the communist party line in the guise of patriotic "indoctrination.

Patterson even went so far as to say that all he knew about the Lincoln brigade in the Spanish civil war was that they had been brave soldiers against fascism.

Mr. Patterson should have known that the Lincoln brigade was a communist army in which some young American idealists had been slaughtered by their communist superiors because they discovered the truth and rebelled.

We know that Frankfurter lobbied Alger Hiss into the state department which sent him to Yalta with the dying President where he, Hiss, sat in at the final conference, the most distastrous in the history of western civilization, with Stalin and Roosevelt.

Soil Plan Ballots Available

County Agent Has Absentee Tickets

Richland county land owners who can't get to the polls Oct. 22 to vote on the question of a soil conservation district for Richland county may obtain absentee ballots now at his office in the court house, County Agent C. N. McGrew said today.

Owners of three acres or more of land outside incorporated areas may vote on the question. Voting will take place at all the township voting places from 1 to 9 p. m. on the voting day. A majority of 65 per cent is required for passage.

McGrew said that on a recent trip through the county he noticed that highway workers were removing tons of topsoil from road ditches. He said the sight was not unusual and there were few farms in Richland county where the effects of erosion are not evident.

The county agent said farm gullies were being filled with soil taken from the ditches, but added that that did little to restore the productivity of the barren soil where "sheet erosion" had done its damaging work. He said that filling of the gullies in no way corrected the faulty soil and water management program which had permitted the topsoil to wash away in the first place.

McGrew said that land loses its productivity in other ways, too, such as cropping level land with rotations "short" on deep-rooted legume grass sods.

FILE PETITION

A vote on the question of a soil conservation district for the county was set up after 300 farmers petitioned the state soil conservation committee for the establishment of such a district.

The steering committee working to bring about the establishment of the district, includes Kenneth Nixon, A. A. Mellick, Warren Smith, Waldo Crum, A. L. Lockheart and Harvey Snyder.

Purpose of a soil conservation district is to aid farmers to work together in maintaining and improving the productivity of their farms through proper land use, plus the practical application of necessary soil building and conservation practices.

All landowners and operators of land containing three or more acres are entitled to services of a district, but no one is compelled to use the services. There is no taxation as a result and services are free, McGrew said.

Schneider Heads Group

The Mansfield Community Memorial and Patriotic association elected officers and made plans for the coming year at a meeting Saturday night in the Memorial building.

Frank Schneider of the Amvets was elected president of the organization.

Walter Hill of the American Legion was elected vice president; Miss Mary Beilstein of the Women's Relief corps, secretary; Mrs. James Brownscombe of the American Legion Auxiliary, treasurer; Mrs. Della M. Cochran, of the Daughters of Union Veterans, director of publicity; Charles R. Hall, Spanish American War Veterans' honorary president of the day; and John Schneider of the VFW, Charles Boughton of the American Legion, and Robert Sneeringer of the Amvets, as grand marshal, and first and second assistants, respectively.

Members voted to place a wreath at the entrance of the Mansfield cemetery before Armistive day. Clyde Myers, who presided over the meeting, reported that the flagpole on the soldiers' lot, which was blown down, is to be raised and reset by the 40 et 8 club.

Body Found In Creek

Mrs. Bollinger's Death Called Suicide

The body of Mrs. Mildred Spayde Bollinger, 38, of Honey Creek road, near Bellville, was found early Sunday in the Cedar Fork at the Hanawalt bridge four miles south of Bellville.

Coroner D. C. Lavender said death was caused by drowning and she apparently took her own life. Deputy sheriffs said they learned she had been in ill health.

Mrs. Bollinger's body was found by Glenn Sprunger, State Route 546. Mrs. Bollinger had been reported missing from her home since 7:30 p. m. Saturday when she drove to Bellville to take a child home. The family car was found approximately 200 feet from the bridge.

Spayde of Bellville; one brother, Russell Spayde of near Lexington; four sisters, Mrs. Mary Garber, Ms. Virginia Maglott and Mrs. Joanne Swank, all of Bellville; and Mrs. Helen Dill of near Mansfield.

Funeral services will be held at 2 p. m. Tuesday at the Presbyterian church in Bellville with Rev. A. H. McLain officiating. Burial will be in Bellville cemetery. The body will remain at the Snyder funeral home in Bellville until time of services.

Hurt as Train Smashes Auto

BUCYRUS—Harold W. Musselman, 66, was confined to City hospital here today with multiple lacerations of the face, hands, arm and knee, as a result of an accident at the West Mansfield street crossing of the Pennsylvania railroad at 6:30 a. m. today.

Musselman was driving to work at the Ohio Locomotive Train company, when his car was hit by eastbound Pennsylvania passenger train No. 44 which was slowing up for the Bucyrus station stop.

Musselman told police that rain had steamed over his windshield and he had failed to see the train. His car was badly damaged.

Hospital officials said today his condition was good.

Rural School Burglarized

Sheriff's deputies began an investigation today of the entrance and ransacking of Windsor school discovered at the opening of school today by Mrs. Anna Clever, Windsor teacher.

Deputies said entrance to the school had been gained by breaking out a panel in the front door and unlocking the door. Contents of the teacher's desk and many of the pupils' desks were scattered about the room. Deputies said that obscene pictures had been drawn on the black board.

Labeling the incident as "pure orneryness," deputies warned that any acts of vandalism will be prosecuted severely.

Delays Action On Bus Route Change

Mrs. Bollinger's Death Called Suicide

Service-Safety Director Earl T. Garrison indicated today that no action would be taken on the Mansfield Rapid Transit, Inc., request for bus route changes until he has had a chance to meet with city council's utilities committee and possibly company officials.

West side residents living on Park avenue west, beyond Linden road, have protested that the bus route change would end service on Park avenue west from Linden road to the city limits.

The bus company has asked Garrison to approve three route changes. One would combine the South Main-Reformatory run, a second would combine North-Main and Glessner. On the Glessner avenue run, the bus would travel as far west as Marion avenue and then go south to Cline avenue east on Cline to Sturges avenue and return.

The third change, over which the protests are being made, would route the Park avenue west bus to Glenwood boulevard, south to Maple street, west to South Linden road and back to Park avenue west.

Those protesting the change argue that any "additional service to any city district should be in the form of an increase to the overall bus service to the city and should not be made at the expense of service to another district."

Other protestors claim that South Linden road is not wide enough, or in the proper condition to permit a bus to run on it.

The bus company has asked that council, as well as Garrison approve the changes, although the franchise gives the power solely to service-safety director.

Mansfield Rapid Transit has asked that the changes be approved by Oct. 15. Garrison said today, however, that he would not act independently, and would talk with the protesting west side residents, the council and the bus company before he acts.

861 Bikes Registered

One-hundred and 96 Hedges street pupils registered their bicycles with the police department Saturday, bringing the total registration to 861, Paul Martin, police identification officer reported today.

He announced that Prospect and Woodland school pupils will be registered Saturday, in addition to West Fifth, Newman, Bowman, Bushnell and Hedges pupils who were not able to register at their assigned times.

Martin warned bicycle owners against removing the metal license tags from the spot where the police have sealed them.

"I have reports that several boys and girls have removed the sealed tags and placed them on the rear fender or some place else. As soon as the registration is complete, we've going to crack down on anyone who has tampered with the seal," Martin said.

"Any persons found with a bike with a broken seal will have to re-register and pay an additional 25 cents," he warned.

Flowers and vegetables have been used for "hat material" in contests of previous seasons but anything at all may be used in the current contest, the committee explained.

Held In 2 Auto Thefts

A 24-year-old Georgia man, apparently bent on getting a car at any cost, was apprehended by Ashland police late yesterday in the second car he was believed to have stolen within three hours.

The Georgia resident, who also gave police a Crestline address, was held in city jail today pending investigation.

According to state patrol officers the first car stolen belonging to C. E. Dudte, 170 Elm street, was found on State Route 314 near the Pennsylvania railroad tracks early Sunday evening. Officers said the car was completely demolished and had been rolled over.

Dudte reported the car stolen at 6:58 p. m.

James L. Brown of Shelby, who happened by the scene shortly after the accident, told officers he picked the driver up and brought him back to Mansfield, where he urged the man to go to General hospital.

Brown said the driver of the wrecked car refused and asked to be let out of the car. Brown said the man was cut about the face and head.

At 7:38 p. m., Paul A. Hassig of Ft. Wayne, Ind., reported to police that his car was stolen while parked in front of 126 Rowland avenue. On an alarm from Mansfield authorities, Ashland police picked up the Georgia man 10 minutes later in Ashland.

Boston Braves Scalp Indians, 11 to 5

Cuff Stuff

By Fred Tharp

(News-Journal Sports Editor)

CLEVELAND—A holiday for swings . . . . That's what the Boston Braves had yesterday in the fifth game of the World Series . . . . Exactly 102 pitches broke the Feller bubble. . . . Billy Southworth's lads clubbed the once unbeatable Iowa farm boy for eight hits and six runs in less than seven innings. . . . Which brings us down to Feller's future in baseball. . . . His yearly victory total has been on the wane. . . . Bobby has been throwing numerous "fat" pitches since his control seems out of control. . . . Then the rumor keeps popping up that Barnum Bill Veeck will try to peddle Feller this winter. . . . The rumors may be correct but the Tribe's sport shirted prexy observed before yesterday's game, "Gene Bearden, Bob Lemon, Steve Gromek and Bob Feller—that's our pitching staff for the next five years."

BILL VOISELLE, the big gent who will dish up curves and fast balls for the Braves today, has an interesting history. . . . The squirrel-shooting fellow from Ninety-Six, North Carolina, won 21 games his first year with the New York Giants. . . . but he fast blew cold. . . . He has been an in-and-outer with the Braves. . . . However, he tells that he beat the Indians nine times in spring training games when he was with the Giants. . . . Big Bill wears the unusually high 96 on his uniform. . . . The only player honoring his home town.

BOB ELLIOTT'S two homers tied an old National league mark. . . . Ben Kauf of the 1917 Giants was the only other player to turn the trick. . . . Until Elliott broke the spell in the third inning, all four series' homers had been over the right field barriers. . . . "I hit the first homer—the one to right field—off a fast ball; the second was off a low curve. The second was better hit. It really travelled," Elliott explained in the dressing room.

PICTURE TAKERS were permitted in the Braves dressing room for the first time. . . . Elliott was their favorite subject. . . . Feller's first pitch of the game was wild. . . . Tommy Holmes singled off the second. . . . Some 787 sports writers "covered" the Cleveland end of the series. . . . The Indian officials really did a fine job in enlarging the facilities so all of the scribes could get in the press box. . . . That figure does not include radio, television and newsreel men.

EDDIE STANKY, the self-appointed Boston spokesman, thinks the Braves will win. . . . He puts it this way: "We've been asleep. Now we're awake. Just watch our smoke." . . . Additional celebrities yesterday included Gene Tunney, the former heavyweight boxing king, and Joe DiMaggio, Mr. Baseball of the New York Yankees. . . . The Indians' nursery at the stadium cared for more than 300 youngsters during the tribal portion of the joust. . . . Approximately 10,000 fans gave the Indians a noisy sendoff towards Boston last night.

CLEVELAND'S huge municipal lakefront stadium didn't have an inch of open space in it yesterday except the playing field. . . . And the crowd broke all attendance-receipts records in the fifth game of the world series. . . . A throng of 86,288, of which 11,813 were standees, took up all the space. . . . Friday the crowd of 81,897, largest ever to see a world series game, but a bit under the June 20 throng here when the Indians met the Philadelphia Athletics in a twin bill. . . . The double header drew 82,781. . . . But yesterday's topped them all. . . . The three-day attendance was 258,891.

Elliott Socks Two; Feller Knocked Out

By FRED THARP
(News-Journal Sports Editor)

CLEVELAND — The staid atmosphere of the 1948 World Series underwent an abrupt change yesterday afternoon as the Boston Braves wore their hitting clothes to the fifth game at the Cleveland stadium.

After four days of watching the pitchers shine in the world's championship joust, the Braves struck long and often to blast the Cleveland Indians off their home diamond to the tune of an 11-to-5 beating. A victory for the Indians would have given them their first world's title since way back in 1920.

As the situation now stands, the Tribesmen must win today or Tuesday in Boston. Bob Lemon, the most consistent regular season Indian hurler, will go to the rubber today with Lefty Gene Bearden pitching the seventh game if necessary. Lemon copped the second game, 4 to 1, while Bearden took the third, 2 to 0.

DIDN'T HAVE IT

Needing only one more victory to take off their first world's championship in 28 years, the Indians yesterday sent Rapid Robert Feller to the mound. But Bobby, who has waited for his first series victory for 12 years, was not equal to the occasion.

Bobby's hill stuff was fair to middling but the Braves bats had been dormant too long. Through the entire National league season Boston club led the National loop in batting, pounding the horsehide .275.

True both teams went into the fifth game with 22 safe blows. However, the Indians had been more potent with men on the hassocks and ran up a 3-to-1 lead in games.

Feller's two-hit losing effort to the terrific Johnny Sain in the opener had been tagged as the best mound job of the series.

NOT IMPRESSED

The Braves were not impressed yesterday, however. They treated the king of the American league moundsmen with little respect and finally drove him from the hill in the fatal seventh inning when Boston notched six runs.

At that time Boston led 6-5 and one other run was debited against Rapid Robert as Boudreau called on Ed Kleiman, Russ Christopher, Ancient Satchel Paige and Bob Muncreif to finish the contest, if it could be called that.

Boston had never made more than one run a game in the first four contests. Tommy Holmes, who drove in the winning run in the first series game, opened yesterday's tilt with a single to right. Al Dark beat out an infield single and Earl Torgeson lined out to Wally Judnich.

SOUNDS NOTE

Bob Elliott, the National league's most valuable player in 1947, sounded an ominous note when he clouted a 380-foot homer over the right field screen to drive in three runs in the top of the first inning. Feller got by the rest of the first and the second without trouble but served Elliott a home run pitch in the third.

The second circuit clout went out right field way and ended about 340-feet from home plate to give the Boston variety of Redskins a 4-to-1 lead. Cleveland has scored once in the initial frame when leadoff man Dale Mitchell hit Nelson Potter's second pitch some 400 feet over the right field fence.

Potter had started the season as a member of the Philadelphia Athletics. Connie Mack handed him his release for "not trying." Potter was sailing along in fine fashion until the fourth. He had retired eight men in a row before Joe Gordon opened the fourth with a smash single to left.

Ken Keltner drew a pass and Judnich followed with a single to center to plate the second Indian run. Al Dark made a fine running catch of Eddie Robinson's Texas leaguer into short left for the first out. The normally weak hitting Jim Hegan then unloaded the bases with a homer into the left field stands to give the Indians a 5-to-4 lead.

That blow ended Potter's tenure on the mound. It also doomed the Indians' chances to wind up the series in five games. Manager Billy Southworth flagged Lefty Warren Spahn from the bull pen. Spahn had been knocked out in the fourth inning of the season game.

SPAHN TOPS

This time, however, the portside ace was tops. He faced only 19 men the remainder of the game and only two were fortunate enough to reach the initial hassock. Dale Mitchell walked on four straight pitches in the fourth and Lou Boudreau doubled to right-center in the eighth.

Boudreau had been the first batter up in the next to last inning. Spahn quickly stifled the Cleveland bats as he struck out Gordon, Keltner and pinch-hitter Ray Boone in order. He also fanned two men in the ninth to end his 5 and 2-3 frame stint with seven whiffings.

After allowing the four Elliott driven-in-runs in the first three frames, Feller did not run into trouble, serious trouble, until the sixth and seventh. Bill Salkeld, No. 2 Boston catcher, homered over the right field wall in the sixth to knot the score.

The roof fell in on Feller in the seventh. Holmes opened with a single and went to second on Al Dark's sacrifice hit. Earl Torgeson lined a single to center to put the Braves ahead by one run. That was all for Feller and Kleiman came in.

Three batters finished off Kleiman. He walked Elliott and Marv Rickert singled to center for another run. The Boston third-sacker counted when Larry Doby threw wild to third, giving Boston a two-run bulge. A walk to Salkeld brought Russ Christopher to the mound.

CALL ON SATCH

Mike McCormick and Eddie Stanky greeted the under-arm thrower with one-base blows to right and Christopher was through for the day. Then it became the job of ol' Satchel Paige to end the inning.

The ancient one got Spahn on a fly to center. Spahn's drive scored Mike McCormick with the 11th run and Holmes grounded out. Al Rosen hit for Paige in the last of the seventh and Bob Muncrief finished for the Indians. In the last two frames, Muncrief allowed only one hit.

The Indians used 16 players in the fifth game, apparently to give the subs a chance to get into a world series game.

HITS THE DIRT — Bob Elliott, Boston third baseman, comes into third base on his back as ball (arrow) skips past Ken Keltner, Cleveland third baseman, in 7th inning of series game at Cleveland yesterday. Elliott got up and scored. Manager Billy Southworth is third base coach. Boston won, 11 to 5.

Feller Is Chagrined Kid; Braves Feel They Can Win

By FRITZ HOWELL

CLEVELAND — (AP) — Lou Boudreau tossed a clean shirt into a traveling bag, looked up at a group of inquiring reporters, and said through tightly-clenched teeth:

"We were due for a game like that. We go with Bob Lemon on the mound tomorrow in Boston, and there won't be any game Tuesday."

That was the Cleveland Indian playing manager's reaction to the weird, wild and woolly 11-to-5 loss which allowed the Boston Braves to pull up to a 3-2 games deficit in the richest World Series ever played.

Bob Feller, who started his second series game and lost both, was a chagrined kid as he packed his clothes for the trip to Boston. He has no hopes of getting in another contest.

Not-too-Rapid Robert was belted for seven runs and eight hits, including three homers, in his six-and-a-third frames. A reporter asked:

HIT TOO MANY

"What was wrong, Bob?" and Feller answered:

"Didn't you see the game? I had lousy control, and they hit too many of them out of the park."

Satchell Paige, the ageless Negro mound star, put the stopper on the Braves in their big six-run seventh by getting the last two men. He was the fourth Indian hurler of the frame, and he didn't linger long in the clubhouse.

Just as newsmen were admitted to the dressing room, Paige was headed for the door in a hurry. His coat was over his arm and his tie in his hand.

He didn't have time to talk about his first World Series game. He mumbled, because:

"I gotta get my bag packed to go to Boston. I didn't think we'd be going back, so I ain't ready yet."

By HUGH FULLERTON, JR.

CLEVELAND —(AP)— "It's Bill Voiselle tomorrow and Johnny Sain Tuesday. We got to hurry."

In those few words Manager Billy Southworth summed up the cocky, confident attitude the Boston Braves regained after slugging the Cleveland Indians into submission in the fifth World Series game.

RELEASE FEELINGS

The Braves, silent and worried-looking when they were losing, released their pent-up feelings in the clubhouse as they hurried to dress and catch their train for Boston.

Southworth, stripping off his uniform in near record time, panted: "It wasn't the difference in Bob Feller's pitching, the difference was in those bats that began to click. They clicked today like they really can click. It was the way we hit all season.

Southworth was making his plans for a seventh game, skipping the possibility that the Indians might win.

As the manager hurried off to the shower, Warren Spahn, the slender southpaw who turned in an outstanding relief job after he replaced Potter in the fourth inning, took up the explanation.

"I wasn't any better than usual, but maybe that background helped me. They sure were missing that fast ball."

A large section of green-painted bleachers in Cleveland stadium is kept vacant to provide a "background" for the hitters, but Spahi's sidearm pitches didn't come to the plate from that direction. He appeared to be bringing the ball out of the thousands of standees on the sloping ramp in front of the bleachers.

CHICAGO — (AP) — Wilberforce State college ran off to a 39-8 win over Tuskegee Institute yesterday in the two Negro schools' 19th game. Paul Ford scored three touchdowns and Billy Shields two for the winners.

Chicago Bears On March With 42-21 Win Over Rams

A keen race in both divisions of the National Football league was in prospect today.

Chicago's Bears trounced the hitherto undefeated Los Angeles Rams, 42 to 21, before 43,707 at Chicago. Sid Luckman, of the Bears, tossed two touchdown passes.

The champion Cardinals beat the Green Bay Packers, 17 to 7, before a record crowd of 34,367 at Milwaukee. Elmer Angsman of the Cards made a 72-yard touchdown run.

A last-minute 12-yard field goal by Joe Glamp gave Pittsburgh a 10-to-7 win over Washington before, 28,969 fans in Pittsburgh, and a tie with the Redskins for first place in the eastern division.

The Eagles crushed the inept New York Giants, 45 to 0, before 23,000 in Philadelphia.

On Saturday night, the Boston Yanks defeated Detroit, 17 to 14.

49'ERS TOPS

The best record of all was held by the AAC's potent San Francisco, winner of seven straight and the champion Cleveland Browns with six in a row, good enough to lead the AAC's western division. Baltimore, with a 3-3 record was the front runner in the eastern division.

With three AAC games yesterday, Frankie Albert and the Forty-Niners stood out. Albert passed for three touchdowns and paced the team to three others as the upstart Baltimore Colts were snowed under, 56 to 14.

Cleveland needed a last quarter surge to topple the down and out Brooklyn Dodgers, 30 to 17 for the sixth Dodger loss in a row.

Alliance Next On Massillon's Tough Grid Card

(By International News Service)

Massilion high school, aiming at its first state championship since the halcyon days of Paul Brown, waited serenely today for the next opponent on its danger-fraught schedule.

The Tigers throttled ultra-tough Steubenville, 34 to 21, last weekend for their fourth straight victor of the season and the Stubbers' first loss.

Coach Chuck Mather and his Massillonites didn't have long to wait for the next possible pitfall. Friday night, sparks may fly when the Tigers meet another undefeated competitor, Alliance.

The Aviators will be fresh from a 14-to-0 trouncing of last year's state champs, Barberton.

Booster Club Meets Tonight

Singing, football movies and a report by Tyger athletic director Augie Morningstar will feature tonight's Tyger booster club meeting at 7:30 at the Senior high auditorium.

The Mansfield Choral Society will furnish the vocal work. Appearance of the 20-voice mixed chorus is being sponsored by the Police Recreation club. As an added feature tickets to a Cleveland Browns' football game will go to some of the spectators.

Morningstar will exhibit movies of Senior high's victory over Sandusky. The Bengal grid boss will also give a report on the Portsmouth game of last week and the scouting report on Springfield. The Tygers play at Springfield Friday night and will be favored to win their fourth straight.

Close Track Season

COLUMBUS— (UP) — The $5,000 Ohio championship, closing day feature of the Beulah park racing season, will be run Saturday.

Local Women Mop Up COL Bowling Loop

Mansfield's Colony alley team was the big noise in the second session of the season of the Central Ohio Ladies Traveling bowling league.

Opposing the host Lancaster quintet, the Mansfield women took three straight games, racked up the highest team total of the night and moved into a tie for second place in the loop.

Sue Humphrey set a fast pace for her mates as she spilled pins for 202-183-203—588, just three pins off the best score of the session. Donna Schuster trailed her with 517 while Billie Cleckner had 498, Helen Wilhelm, 452, and Dot McDevitt, 441.

Collectively the girls scored 2496, some 70 pins more than their nearest competitor. Their three victories gives them a 5-1 record, and a second place tie with Mt. Vernon. Newark has won all six of its starts to hold the lead.

On the home front, Dave Moysl was tops with a 578 series comprised on games of 178, 168, and 232. He set the mark while rolling in the Sons of Herman league at Colony.

Webb Denies DiMag Signed

NEW YORK — (INS) — Co-owner Del Webb, of the New York Yankees denied today a published report that Joe DiMaggio had signed a 1949 contract calling for $85,000.

The story was published in a New York morning paper and drew an immediate denial from both Webb and Dan Topping.

Webb said that DiMaggio has neither voiced any demands nor signed for next year. He added:

"We haven't even had a conference on the subject with Joe."

Shelby Blues Pound Akron Team, 31 to 13

SHELBY — The Shelby Blues trounced the Akron Bulldogs in a thrill packed game at the Shelby high school stadium yesterday afternoon by a score of 31 to 13.

Climaxed by a beautiful 88-yard run for a touchdown by Kit Keiser, the shivering crowd saw an exhibition of running, passing and hard tackling which will not be soon forgotten.

Keiser twisted and turned his way through left tackle for 15 yards and the first score. Hartz' conversion attempt was wide.

The Blues' second score was set up when Blair faded back to pass and fumbled the ball on the Akron seven-yard line, where it was recovered by Claybaugh. Roose made four yards on a reverse and then Laubie tossed to Carpenter for the TD. Hartz converted.

Here the Bulldogs began to snarl. Hartz kicked off to Gauthier on the 18, who raced back to the 41. The Bulldogs took to the air with Blair completing two passes. One to Jackson for a first down on the Shelby 46, and then another to Lewis for 46 yards and a touchdown. Gauthier converted to make the score 13 to 7.

With seconds remaining in the second quarter Blair again passed to Lewis from the Shelby nine-yard strip to tie up the ball game.

In the second half Junior Bonecutter dashed to the Akron 30 on a beautiful 25-yard reverse. He smashed for seven yards.

In the second play of the last quarter Laubie tossed a strike to Yosick in the end zone for 29 yards and another score. Bonecutter's attempted drop-kick was no good and Shelby led, 25-13.

Cleveland Browns Batter Dodgers

Champs Win 6th Straight League Tilt

By IRVING LIEBOWITZ

CLEVELAND — The awesome power generated by Cleveland's All-America Football conference champions carried the unbeaten Browns to their sixth straight triumph here last night, a 30-17 victory over Brooklyn's Dodgers.

The Browns, operating out of the deceptive T-formation, ground out four touchdowns before 31,187 "leftover" World Series fans at the Cleveland stadium.

It was the sixth straight loss for the Dodgers who played the Browns to a standstill through the first three periods, being tied at 10-10 at the half and 17-17 going into the final quarter.

AERIAL DUELISTS

The much-heralded aerial duel between Brooklyn's Bob Hoernschmeyer, former Indian star and Cleveland's Otto Graham, ex-Northwestern gridder, came off on schedule with the Dodger passing star holding a slight edge. Both carried the main burden of their club's offensive.

Highlight of the game came when Lou Groza, Cleveland's place-kicking ace from Ohio State, got pretty ambitious last night on field goals. His most sensational boot was one he missed.

That was in the first three minutes of play when he let fly from 56 yards out. The ball hit the crossbar and bounded into the playing field, but had it been a few inches high a new conference record would have been set. He did kick one from 53 yards out, however, a yard short of the league mark.

DECIDING BLOW

A recovered fumble and touchdown run of 12 yards by End George Young, in the first two minutes of the last quarter, was the deciding blow. Although late in the game, the Browns moved 73 yards in 17 plays, all on the ground, for another score, Big Marion Motley going over from the three.

With Otto Graham pitching three complete passes in a row, for a total of 47 yards, the Browns moved right back in to score the first touchdown, Special Delivery Edgar Jones making it from the three.

Groza place-kicked the extra point, and late in the period, booted the 53-yard field goal.

Brooklyn roared back to tie it with a drive that started back of the goal line on the kickoff and went all the way. Hunchy Hoernschmeyer hit Dan Edwards with 14 and 12-yard passes, and Hank Foldberg with a 10-yarder to spark the drive that sent Mickey Colmer over from the two.

Lee Tevis place-kicked the point, and followed in the same period with a 36-yard field goal to tie the score.

WHIPS THROUGH TACKLE

In the third session the Browns marched 79 yards in 12 plays, featured by a 33-yard Graham-to-Mac Speedie pass, before Billy Boedeker whipped through tackle for 10 yards and a score.

That put the Browns ahead, but the Dodgers tied it on a "cheap" one as the Browns' favorite offensive weapon, Groza's toe, backfired. Groza tried one from around the 45-yard mark, but Mike Harris blocked it and Foldberg scooped the ball up for a 51-yard touchdown run.

Hurlers Fight To Keep Jobs As Bats Roar

CLEVELAND — The fifth and most exciting World series game of 1948 was, like the others, a pitcher's battle. Only this time the pitchers battled to stay in as the rejuvenated Braves pounded out 12 hits, including three towering homers.

The Indians used five hurlers, Bob Feller, Ed Klieman, Russ Christopher, Satchel Paige and Bob Muncrief.

Ole Satchmo waited more than 40-long years for this great moment. His patience was rewarded with a two-thirds inning stint in which he gave up nary a hit.

Bob Hope, the movie and radio star who also is a Cleveland stockholder, was standing up during an exciting moment of a series when an indignant fan, apparetly here from Brookly to see the grid Dodgers battle the Browns, blistered his ears with the full Brooklyn treatment. "Sit down, ya bum ya," he shouted. "I can see you in the movies any time. But when I pay eight bucks for a world series ticket I wanna look at the ball game."

There was a hotel marque in town that boldly proclaimed, "Scalp 'em, Indians." Inside the lobby ticket scalpers were industrially scalping every Indian fan in sight.

The rumors flew fast and furious between baseball men and writers. Some were fact, some were fiction. Many were concocted by wiseacres among the sports characters who tried to give overworked pressmen from all over the country a nice, new lead for later editions.

Hottest and perhaps most accurate "line" making the rounds concerns Dick Bartell, who insiders claim will get a chance to manage the New York Giants.

Ed Stanky, the Braves' pepperpot second socker who was up to his old tricks on the basepaths yesterday, spiked the report that he would go back to Brooklyn as manager, "Didn't they re-hire Barney Shotton," the fiery Stanky roared.

Barons Open Hockey Season Tomorrow

CLEVELAND — (INS) — Cleveland's Barons begin defense of their American Hockey league championship at Washington tomorrow night without the services of Church Russell, speedy wingman.

Russell, who played 40 games with the Barons last winter, will return to the New York Rangers to help strengthen the team weakened by injuries to four Ranger players in an automobile accident.

A. F. Kraft Wins Trophy At Barbecue

Well over a thousand persons were given all they could eat at the annual beef barbecue of the Ohio Sportsman's Gun club, but even this did not satisfy A. F. Kraft of Massillon.

Kraft, 1947 champion of the club, also carted home the huge rotating trophy which goes each year to the best shooter at the barbecue. Kraft broke 24 out of 25 birds in a shootoff after being tied with E. M. Young of Zanesville with 95 birds at the end of the regulation 100 target distance. Fifty targets were shot from the 16-yard line and the other half from handicap distances. Young cracked only 23 in the overtime firing.

Tied for third among the field of 87 shooters were G. Dominy of Marion, S. Robinson of Massillon, Mel Vogt of Tiffin, Tom Nedolast of New Washington. They broke 94 birds.

D. DeGood of Ostrander and Dale Beefe of Monroeville each cracked 93, while D. Reese of Niles, Georte Cottrele of Lakeview and E. V. Craner of Crestline, had 92.

Frank Carroll of Brecksville, surrendered the trophy after breaking only 89 birds. He had won the championship last year.

Over a ton of beef was given away at the affair, as two cattle were butchered.

Records Fall Fast As Stadium Does Quick-Change

CLEVELAND —(INS)— Three records fell in the space of a few hours yesterday at Cleveland Stadium.

The largest crowd in baseball history, 86,288 paying customers, watched the Indians lose the fifth game of the world series to the Boston Braves.

A record also was set for single game receipts. The take was $378,788.73, as compared with the former record of $327,659.70 set at Yankee Stadium Oct. 5, 1947.

The third record involved attendance at sporting events in one day at the stadium. With the 31,187 spectators who turned out to watch the Cleveland Browns, Brooklyn Dodgers All-America conference football clash, 117,475 patrons in all passed through the stadium gates.

Montreal Team Nears Little World Series

MONTREAL— (UP) — The Montreal Royals needed only one more victory today to write finis to the little world series and one of the greatest baseball seasons in Montreal history.

The International league pennant winners took their third straight little world series game from St. Paul, 8 to 3, yesterday and held a 3 to 1 lead in games with their righthanded ace, Jack Banta, set to close out activities today.

Satchel to Stay With Indians But Would Like to Work More

By JOE REICHLER

EN ROUTE TO BOSTON — (AP) — Fabulous Leroy (Satchell) Paige would like to stay on with the Cleveland Indians as long as Manager Lou Boudreau thinks he can be of value to the club.

The most famous of all Negro hurlers, Paige is grateful to the Cleveland club for giving him his long-awaited big league chance, and is proud of his part in helping the Indians win their first pennant in 28 years.

His only regret—and it difinitely is not a complaint—is that he hasn't been called upon to pitch more often. He is convinced if used regularly next year, he will win 20 games.

Although Paige admits he is not quite as fast as he was two decades ago, the fortyish flinger firmly believes his curve ball, control, general pitching savvy and his vast experience can carry him through several more years in the big time.

WANT TO STAY

"I want to remain in the big leagues and especially with the Clevelands," Paige said yesterday as he accompanied his mates on their train ride to Boston for the sixth World Series game. "I believe it's a great thing for my race and I want my people to be proud of me."

Paige made his first series appearance yesterday in Cleveland's losing game to the Braves, and was the only one of four Indian pitchers to emerge unscathed in Boston's riotous six-run seventh inning. After the aroused Bostonians had raked Bob Feller, Ed Klieman and Russ Christopher for all their runs, Paige came in and retired Warren Spahn and Tommy Holmes on a routine fly and a simple infield grounder. He bowed out for a pinch-hitter in Cleveland's half of the seventh.

Paige joined the Tribe in midseason and won six games while losing one. He pitched three complete games, two of them shutouts.

"I could have won more if they'd let me pitch more often," he said, "but Boudreau was afraid I could not go nine innings. You know, they signed me up strictly as a relief pitcher."

Crash Kills Race Driver Ted Horn

DU QUOIN, Ill. — (AP) — Ted Horn won't roar that sleek Maserati, with No. 1 emblazoned on the hood, around the Indianapolis speedway any more.

And he will never realize his burning ambition to win the 500-mile Memorial day classic.

Horn, 38, three-time national auto racing champion who earned some $55,000 in nine Indianapolis races, was killed yesterday on the Du Quoin fair ground track.

A wheel spindle broke on Horn's racer during the second lap of a 100-mile AAA race. He was pitched onto the track as his big car swerved into another racer driven by Johnny Mantz.

Twenty minutes after they rushed Horn to a hospital he was dead. He had suffered a concussion, crushed chest and fractured left leg.

Mantz was injured slightly. He left the hospital after treatment. Johnny Parsons of Los Angeles won the race.

Horn, from Paterson, N. J., had won the American Automobile association racing title in 1946, 1947 and already had clinched it this year.

He had tried 10 times to win the big Indianapolis race. In his last nine attempts he never finished lower than fourth. Last May he was fourth, behind Mauri Rose, Bill Holland and Duke Nalon.

County Gets More Bills

Two bills for a total of $144 were received today for tests given Robert Murl Daniels, convicted slayer of John E. Niebel and two members of his family.

Common Pleas Judge G. E. Kalbfleisch said one of the bills was for $125 for an encephalogram, or "brain wave" test, given Daniels by Dr. Joseph L. Fetterman, a Cleveland psychiatrist.

The other bill was for $19 for a spinal fluid test which was given Daniels at University hospital in Cleveland. Judge Kalbfleisch said he had these bills under advisement as well as the bills of $500 each presented by two court-appointed psychiatrists, Dr. R. E. Bushong, of Lima, and Dr. J. F. Bateman, of Columbus.

Charge Withdrawn

A complaint against Joseph Nahas, 30, of Akron charging nonsupport of his nine-year-old daughter was withdrawn today in juvenile court. Court attaches said that attorneys for Nahas and his former wife had decided to have the Summit county common pleas court set up the support payments as the divorce decree was handed down there.

Just Ignores Stickup Man

OMAHA — (AP)—A holdup man retreated empty handed Saturday when his threats were ignored by the manager of a busy grocery store. Manager Amil Martin told police he was accosted at the rear of the store by a man who told him "this is a stickup."

"I went to the cashier's stand, began sacking groceries, and just ignored him," Martin related. The holdup man followed, demanding to know what he was going to do.

"I'm not going to do anything," the store manager replied. If you hold me up you'll have to hold up the whole store." The holdup man left with "Okay, Mac, you win."

Lucas Garden Club to Meet

LUCAS — Because potluck dinner sessions, where conversation is a chief diversion, have been unusually popular with Lucas Garden club members in previous years, two such meetings are planned for this school year. First of the dinner meets will be held in the school cafeteria at 1 p. m. Thursday.

Members of the dinner committee are Mrs. Willard Moffett, Chairman; Mrs. Harold McGugin, Mrs. Lloyd McCready, Mrs. Ralph Borick, Mrs. Carl Heilman and Mrs. Glenn Butterbaugh. They will provide bread and beverage.

Many items of business are scheduled for discussion, according to Mrs. Doyle Stake, president, since the "get acquainted" party for teachers, school employes and patrons occupied most of the first session of the year. Foremost of the topics for discussion will be methods of raising money for use throughout the school year.

3—In Memoriam

IN MEMORIAM of Walter Raymond Messer, who died Oct. 10th, 1946.
No one knows the silent heartache,
Only those who lost can tell.
Of grief we bear in silence,
For the one we loved so well.
Friends may think we have forgot you
When they see us smile,
Little do they know our sorrow that is hid behind a smile.
Words can't tell how much we miss you,
How we miss your smiling face.
We often sit and think of you,
And to think of how you died.
To think you said goodby to none.
Before you closed your eyes,
But you left us to remember none on earth can take your place.
Sadly missed by Mother and Father and Brothers.

Kiddies Like to Drink Through Straws

'Milk Time' Popular In Mansfield Schools

"Milk Time" in Mansfield's grade schools is fast replacing recess as the pupils' favorite "subject", according to primary grade teachers.

This is the period set aside twice each day, morning and afternoon, to serve kindergarten, first and second grade pupils a half-pint of pasteurized milk. In some classes, the "milk time" period becomes a "snack" period since children bring cake, cookies and crackers from home to eat with their twice-daily serving of milk.

Arrival of the milk signifies the beginning of a relaxation period which teachers heartily endorse as vital to the youngsters who on many occasions have difficulty adjusting themselves to the routine of a classroom.

At the Friendly House, Mrs. Mary Gimbel utilizes the "milk time" period as a "party" session, with each of the 40 boys and girls in the kindergarten classes taking turns as hosts and hostesses. Here they are taught the little courtesy of saying "Yes, thank you," when invited to join the others in accepting refreshments, usually consisting of a half-pint of milk and cookies.

CHEST FUNDS HELP THEM — "Bottoms Up"might well serve as the caption for this picture of two youngsters enjoying "milk time," a daily part of the schedule in most Mansfield schools. Children who can pay for the milk do so, while those who are unable to provide the money are given a half-pint of milk twice each day without cost. The Milk Fund, a Red Feather agency of the Mansfield Community Chest, is one of 12 agencies which will benefit from contributions to the Community Chest campaign, which opens October 18.

SUPPLEMENT DIET

In this way, Mrs. Gambel explains, they are not only supplementing their diet requirements for a quart of milk per day for each growing child, but they also are learning proper table etiquette.

Mrs. Gimbel is highly enthusiastic over the opportunity of providing additional milk for the children of her kindergarten classes, as many of them come from large families where it is financially impossible for the parents to purchase one quart of milk for each of the children daily.

One Mansfield teacher explains that while the children have all been educated to the fact that milk is a "must" in their daily diet, much of the pleasure of their "snack time" is derived from the practice of drinking their milk through straws.

"It's really surprising the large number of boys and girls coming into the first grades who have never used straws," Mrs. Hazel Uhlich, first grade teacher at Bushnell school, explained, "and the first few attempts are a source of fun and laughter to all."

Recently Mrs. Uhlich received a note from the mother of one of her pupils asking her co-operation in encouraging the youngster to drink milk.

LEARNS TO LIKE IT

"She just refuses to drink milk at home, insisting she doesn't like the taste of it," the letter stated. The mother explained that perhaps with the other girls and boys drinking milk her daughter might be encouraged to join them. Mrs. Uhlich said that before long the youngster was having milk both morning and afternoon and really enjoying it.

Miss Mae Longsdorf who teaches in the first grade at Bowman school also is enthusiastic about the Milk Fund program for the youngsters.

During the 1947-48 school year in Mansfield, seven of the city's schools were enrolled in this program and served 21,994 bottles of milk to the boys and girls, of which more than one-third were paid for with money from the Milk Fund. The remainder was paid by the children themselves.

The kindergarten at Friendly House served 4,500 bottles of milk to their pre-school boys and girls, most of which was made available by money from the Milk Fund.

The Milk Fund and Student Aid program are Red Feather agencies, supported by the Mansfield Community Chest, whose 1948 drive for funds opens Monday, Oct. 18.

Piles Are Never "Mild"

DANGER IN NEGLECT

No one should ever think of piles (hemorrhoids) as a "mild" disorder.

Although they may seem a "mild" ailment, especially when not giving pain or inconvenience, piles are in fact tumor formation without tendency to heal themselves; instead, they are likely, if neglected, to keep increasing in size, involving more and more of the rectal area.

Even a so-called "mild" case may be expected to undermine one's health, by inviting predisposing to or aggravating other ailments, such as: indigestion, biliousness, stomach trouble, constipation, headaches, pain in back and down the legs, secondary anemia with its run-down tired feeling, and general nervous irritability.

Removal of piles is the only permanent relief—written guarantee. My method produces little or no discomfort, does not require the use of knife or drugs, and seldom is the patient required to lose any time from work or other duties.

Why not call and learn of this method? The examination is free.

Ohio Week-End Traffic Accidents, Plane Crashes Kill 8

3 Private Airplanes In Crackups

Rain Makes Roads, Streets Hazardous

(By United Press)

At least eight persons died violent deaths in Ohio over the week-end, with traffic accidents on roads made treacherous by off-and-on rain accounting for the lion's share.

Two plane crashes, one near Sandusky and the other near Vandalia, killed two men and sent two others to the hospital.

Harley Rowland, 44, of Milan, and Bernard Lee Millis, 39, of Avery, both were killed when their low-flying plane plunged into a tree 11 miles south of Sandusky. The victims were on their way home from the World Series game at Cleveland.

A light plane piloted by Perry Rowland, 28, of Dayton, crashed on the Lewis Waltsmith farm, two miles east of Vandalia late Sunday. Rowland and a passenger, John Hire, 40, also of Dayton, were taken to the Miami Valley hospital.

PLUNGES ON ROAD

Highway patrolmen said the plane clipped a tree then plunged into a near-by road.

Traffic accidents accounted for the lives of at least five persons in the period from midnight Friday to midnight Sunday.

The dead:

Mrs. Emma Jo Ruff, 20-year-old mother of two children, killed when the truck in which she was riding went out of control and struck a utility pole on Columbus' south side. Police said the truck was driven by her husband, John, 22.

BURNS IN TRUCK

Keith Compton, of Indianapolis, burned to death when his tractor-trailer collided with a Pennsylvania passenger train eight miles west of Shelby.

Joseph Granlolec, 54, of Cleveland, was killed by an automobile at a downtown Cleveland intersection.

Robert Schellentrager, 21, Shaker Heights, was killed when a single engine monoplane crashed on the takeoff from Lost Nation airport in Lake county.

Patricia Ann May, four, was hit by a truck in Alliance, the first traffic death there since last September.

Sylvia Dailey, 16, Mt. Vernon, was knocked from a railroad trestle spanning the Kokosing river east of Mt. Vernon. Her body was hurled into the river. Kathleen Kreps, 17, a companion, escaped injury.

Nominated For Post

Common Pleas Judge G. E. Kalbfleisch said today that he would recommend to state selective service headquarters the appointment of J. H. Francis, of 914 Grace street, to the Richland county draft board.

Francis served for three years on the draft board during the war years. Francis would take the place left vacant when Rev. Bruce D. Young, of Shelby, declined his appointment because, he said, he would be unable to give the time to the job that it required.

Judge Kalbfleisch said he would send the recommendation on to selective service headquarters at Columbus tomorrow.

The judge has asked Robert Bonham, commander of the Amvets here, to recommend to him someone from that organization who can serve on the board.

The man recommended would succeed W. E. Stough, of Mansfield, R. D. 6, who has indicated that he desires to resign as a member of the board. The other member of the board is James F. Carrigan, who has indicated that he will stay on the board for a while, Judge Kalbfleisch said.

GETS SCOUT POST

DEFIANCE — (NS) — W. Jo A. Shook, of Bluffton, was named today as field executive of the northern part of the 12-county Shawnee council of the Boy Scouts of America.

Teacher Amazed At 'Capitalist' Plenty

By OKSANA S. KASENKINA
Edited by Isaac Don Levine

Within two weeks of my arrival in the United States I found myself enclosed by the iron curtain which shuts off all Soviet citizens on assignments abroad, but which remains invisible to the people in whose midst they live.

I first saw New York at dawn on June 15, 1946, from the Soviet freighter Kirov, a former Liberty ship. Being just a plain teacher, and not a Soviet bureaucrat, I had spent some seven weeks traveling from Moscow to America, with long stop-overs at Black Sea ports, and on board ship in Marcelles and Gibraltar.

"The natural science teacher is here," was the word that spread in the Soviet colony as soon as I was conducted to the diplomatic school on East 87th Street at Park Avenue where I was quartered in a pleasant room. Vice consul Sorokin assigned a teacher, Valentina Orlova, to act as my escort. She had been in the United States for quite a while, and it was not long before I discovered that she was a member of the Communist Party.

My first contact with life in America was a visit to a delicatessen store. I could not believe my eyes at the sight of all the meats and other food products. Everything seemed so cheap to me, with no ration cards, and no queues in the street. "What wealth!" I could not help exclaiming. My companion looked askance at my unconcealed exuberance.

I was taken on a tour of the parkway along the Hudson River, and it seemed to me like a scene from paradise—the fabulous traffic against the background of great natural beauty. To think that all these myriads of automobiles were being driven by capitalists! Could it be that everybody in the United States was a capitalist, I mused.

Next I went on a shopping trip to some of the leading department stores. The variety of goods offered was simply breathtaking. That there was no limit to what anyone could buy and that the stock was inexhaustible, seemed incredible to one who was accustomed to standing in line in Moscow, often to be told that the article you had been waiting for was all sold out. And what Moscow teacher could afford to shop in the best department store there—the Mostorg?

FIVE-AND-TEN MARVEL

The wonder of wonders was the five-and-ten cent store on Fifth Avenue where I was taken. A Soviet citizen in her sweetest dreams cannot conjure up such a profusion of everyday goods, and I was astonished that the throngs outside did not clean out the shelves and the counters in a mad rush such as would occur in Moscow were such a magic store to be opened.

"So this is what the United States gives its people." I remarked to my guide. This was heresy, especially since it was the unwritten law among all the Communist officials to run down everything American.

These Communists stocked up with more American goods than the ordinary Soviet citizens, and yet they were the loudest in berating American merchandise as compared with Russian.

On a walk through Central Park, Orlova casually asked me: "What kind of a tree is this? And what's that?" I quickly perceived that I was being given a test in natural science. There were other questions about plants and flowers. I had occasion to show off my knowledge to the ignorant Communist girl when I pointed out to her that in America there are different species of oaks and maples whereas in Russia we have but one kind of these trees. I had no trouble in identifying the various flowers and shrubs, and obviously made a deep impression.

This examination was clearly inspired by the local bureacrats who did not altogether trust the Moscow authorities. Suppose I had a "pull" back home and managed to get for myself a junket to America as so many Communist teachers did? They earned it through denunciation, spying, and similar services for Soviet dignitaries.

That I was to live in a little Soviet America grew apparent almost at once when it came to the question of how to handle one's mail back home. Of the dozen teachers in our school some had air-mailed letters to their folks in Russia through the United States post office. These innocents had dropped their letters in an ordinary mailbox. We were all called together and given this broad hint:

"We understand that some of our teachers are sending letters through the United States mail. Why not send it through the Soviet diplomatic pouch?"

TRUTH BARRED

We took this as an order, knowing full well that our mail would be censored in the Soviet consulate when we turned it in, but realizing that failure to do so would entail severe penalty. It also meant that I could not write the truth about America. An enthusiastic description would subject me to suspicion as a counter-revolutionary.

Together with the censorship of mail went a ban on subscribing to American newspapers. Only one New York paper, RUSSKY GOLOS, printed in Russian, a pro-Soviet publication following the party line, was recommended to us. To be seen with the other Russian daily, the anti-Communist Novoye Russkoye Slovo, a democratic paper, was dangerous, and one had to buy it surreptitiously and read it secretly.

I fell sick two weeks after my arrival and ran a temperature, but kept at my duties. In the midst of it the director appeared with an order from the consul that I vacate my room within 24 hours. I protested that I was ill and could not move upon such notice. He brushed my objections aside and demanded that I sign the order.

The following morning my things, papers, books, clothes and even plant specimens were tossed helter-skelter into boxes, and I was taken with my belongings to 89th street and Columbus avenue, the apartment of Alexander Y. Porojniakov, secretary of the Soviet consulate.

"I'll never forgive you this forcible moving," I flung at the director before leaving my quarters in the school building. The room now assigned to me was dark, facing a shaft. It did not have even have a radiator, so that in the winter it was cold and the door had to be kept open to get some heat.

Porojniakov, a Moldavian communist from Bessarabia, had the mark of the NKVD about him, as did his wife Zoya. From now on I had to watch my step, whether I went for a walk, to shop for groceries, or to visit a museum or library. To be seen in conversation with a stranger might have serious consequences. The long shadow of the NKVD began to black out the sunny promise of life in New York.

Girl Scouts To Barter

Clothing Mart Set In Ashland

ASHLAND — Ashland Girl Scouts and Brownie Scouts will have an exchange mart of their outgrown uniforms and caps Saturday at the Girl Scout room in the Red Cross building.

The barter session, scheduled for 10 a. m. to 5 p. m., is being inaugurated by Girl Scout leaders and council members in response to numerous requests for used uniforms by the youthful members.

Girl Scouts and Brownies may place their uniforms on sale or exchange them for other sizes. Only those uniforms in good condition will be acceptable, leaders have announced.

Increase in membership in the Girl Scouts here this year has created a heavy demand for uniforms, leaders state.

Police Chief Is Surprised

ASHLAND—It was a double-header surprise for Oscar Gannon of near Ashland and Police Chief Harry Smith, Saturday.

Gannon came into the police station to report he had hit a fender of a parked car near the police station. He reported the license number of the damaged car.

Chief Smith searched through the file of license numbers to see whose car had been damaged. That's where the surprise came in.

The car belonged to Chief Smith.

State Urges County to Set Up Community Welfare Council

of a lack of cooperation there is likely to be a duplication of some services and a complete lack of other services. It says the work of the Child Welfare board should be closely integrated with that of other community services.

An analysis of children under care of the board, shows that as of Dec. 31, 1947, there were 129 children under care.

They were receiving care and supervision as follows: home of parents, 23; home of relatives, 12, free foster family home (adoptive and wage home) 26; boarding foster family home, 15; children's home, 52, and one in the hospital.

FEW IN HOMES

Compared with figures for all public welfare agencies, this distribution shows a larger percentage of institutional care and free foster family care, and a low percentage of children in boarding homes, the report adds.

The report says that while it is too different from some counties that have children's homes, "there should be in Richland county less reliance on institutional care of children and more emphasis on the development of well rounded and diverse resources for their care."

The report says that the large number of children under six years of age indicates the need for a larger boarding home program. It says an effort was made to plan for pre-school children in boarding, free or adoptive homes, but that nine children under six years have remained in the Children's home. It adds that planning for foster family care for pre-school children should be given priority.

Of the 129 children under the care of the board, a chart shows that both parents of three are dead, that the parents of 41 are either divorced, separated or deserted, that one or both of the parents of 30 have remarried.

The report says that the need for extensive casework service is clearly indicated in the figures, adding that "parents who have failed seriously in caring for their children at one time may, with help and understanding, be able to properly do so at a later time."

Pointing out that parents' ability to care adequately for their children is sometimes affected by conditions beyond their control, such as illness, inadequate finances, and lack of understanding, the report adds: "All resources and strengths in a family should be ascertained and continually considered as they relate to the best interests of the child."

The report says that the majority of referrals are made by agencies in the community rather than directly by parents. It adds that the largest number are made by the juvenile court and the Humane society, while the remainder of referrals are made by common pleas court, Volunteers of America, the Red Cross, the St. Vincent de Paul society, and the Aid to Dependent Children office.

The report says that "the fact that so few children are referred to the Child Welfare board by their parents, schools, police, the health and public assistance agencies indicates a failure on the part of the board to make its responsibility for services known to the community.

LEADERSHIP URGED

"The board should take leadership in developing, in cooperation with other agencies, the necessary policies and procedures for referral of children to the board for service."

The report says that 10 agencies were asked by the survey staff to contribute information which would give a picture of the needs of children not currently met by the Child Welfare board.

Questioned were the juvenile court, St. Vincent de Paul society, Mansfield board of education, Richland county board of education, Relief administration, Aid to Dependent Children, Humane society, Red Cross, county-city health department and Friendly House.

The report says that because of time limitations and the pressures of work only a limited response was received. The staff did not feel that the reports represented a valid estimate of the total unmet needs in the county.

Answers were received from Aid to Dependent Children, general relief, Richland county board of education, Red Cross, St. Vincent de Paul society and the county-city health department.

There were 109 children mentioned in the reports received from the various agencies.

The report recommended further study of the situation in regards to 34 of those children, and guidance or financial assistance for 21 of them. It said 54 of the children are in need of placement.

The survey report says that a number of the children reported in need of services or replacement were from large families and probably have been known to agencies for some time.

ASKS PLAN OF ACTION

The report adds: "It is important that such situations not be casually accepted as perennial problems but that the community pull together to effect the most constructive plan possible."

The survey was made by Mrs. Virginia S. Ferguson, assisted by Miss Mary Jane Paumier, child welfare consultant, for the division of social administration of the State Department of Welfare, at the request of the county commissioners.

Originally, the survey was to be on the question as to whether the Children's home should be reestablished on a farm site, but later it was decided that the check-up should consider the total program of the Child Welfare board.

The report says that the recommendations of the survey are based on the generally accepted standards of child care and not on comparison with the programs of similar agencies in other counties.

While the program of the Richland county Child Welfare board may compare favorably with that of some agencies, and unfavorably with that of others, the concern of the public officials and citizens of Richland county is the manner in which their program meets the needs of the children in their community," the report said.

Whatever it may have been elsewhere, Cleveland surely had a touch of Indian summer over the week-end—with the Braves reserving their wardance until Sunday afternoon.

Campaign Reaches Vigorous Stage

LIKE IT OR NOT—with election day coming along three weeks from tomorrow—there will be no escaping a deluge of political oratory and argument from now on.

Last Friday night's Republican rally, with House Speaker Joseph Martin, jr., as the spotlighted attraction, provided inspiration for furtherance of the GOP campaign in this area, and equal intensification of activities may be expected in Democratic circles, as Mansfield and Richland county voters are accustomed to show considerable independence, which results in strong appeals being made by both sides.

Heavy registration in Mansfield and Madison township evidences keen interest, with probability of the largest total of votes ever cast in Richland county.

This interest extends beyond the presidential contest and includes choice of state officials, congressman, county officials—with several lively contests in prospect.

Whether many—or any—votes are changed during the final weeks of a campaign has been a matter of considerable discussion . . . but the fact remains that active campaigning is considered proper procedure, with concentration of effort on "getting out the vote."

So cheer up. It'll all be over in less than a month. Meanwhile decide now that YOUR vote will be in the ballot box long before the polls close on the evening of November 2.

Strategic Value of Spain Viewed

IT SEEMS odd, at first glance, that the United States while marshalling all its power and influence to prevent the further expansion of the communist dictatorship should suddenly begin talking about placing dictator Franco back in this country's good graces.

The dictatorship in Spain as everyone knows, is of the same stripe as was Hitler's or Mussolini's. It is based on the same rule of force as Stalin's. Yet Secretary of State Marshall and his advisors are known to be at least considering partial recognition of the present Spanish government.

The facts behind this seemingly inexplicable move are entirely geographical.

If the cold war in Europe turns suddenly into a fighting war the Iberian peninsula (Spain and Portugal) becomes a site for strategic bases. If the rest of Europe had to be abandoned, armies could retreat into Spain, behind the Pyrenees, and hold out for a long time while more forces were brought up.

Dickering with Spain would be a cold-blooded proposition, indeed. It would give the western nations a strange ally—but no stranger than Stalin himself was.

And if we are going to sit on the same side of the table with a dictator again, it is to be hoped that this time we will recognize the dictator as an-ally-by-necessity and not fool ourselves into helping build up a future enemy for our own people.

Three Months Since Bomb Explosion

SO THAT it may not be forgotten—or passed into the police department's record of "unsolved crimes"—there is this "refresing of recollection" (as the lawyers call it), that three months have now passed since the bomb explosion in the rear of a South Park street cafe, which resulted in injury of two patrolmen and two city firemen.

The Murl Daniels triple murder, followed by his capture, trial and conviction, came along so soon afterward as to divert public attention, but the fact that the bomb-planter remains uncaught creates a menace to the community that should not be lightly passed over.

It can scarcely be doubted that some other persons know the identity of the man who was seen to run from the scene of the bombing, and with continuance of vigilance on the part of the police department, coupled with a show of public interest in divulging any information that may be gained, it seems quite likely that the perpetrator of the bombing outrage will sometime be run down and punished.

Meanwhile the reward of $250 offered by The News-Journal for information leading to the arrest and conviction of the guilty party still stands.

Year-'Round Fire Prevention Needed

NOW that Mansfielders have witnessed a successful observance of Fire Prevention week, why not resume an earlier practice of carrying the fire prevention program through the entire year?

This was done some years ago in such a way as to hold public attention to the subject of fire prevention as a continuous activity, under sponsorship of the Chamber of Commerce, with various groups accepting responsibility for each month's program.

Of special interest in connection with last week's observance was the lively interest shown by school children, which is a specially important part of the training required for avoidance of the common causes of fires, a high percentage of which are attributed to carelessness or ignorance.

It is claimed for that new metal, titanium, that it has the strength of steel though only half the weight of aluminum—which should make it ideal material for snow shovels.

Claude Callar comes right out and says what a number of people seem to think: "We do wish people were unselfish. Then we could quit work and live off their generosity."

"Youth" is defined by one observer as "that rare, fleeting quality that gets you exhilarated, inspired and married."

One housewife reports that the result of using a "no-egg, no-butter, no-sugar" recipe was "no cake."

What Some Other People Are Saying

American SECRETARY OF STATE MARSHALL: [illegible] powers have made every conceivable effort to solve it [illegible] tion peacefully."

Navy Secretary JOHN SULLIVAN: "It would be more comforting if we could look forward optimistically to a day when all the nations of the world are united against aggression."

ANTHONY EDEN, former British foreign secretary and deputy leader of the Conservative party, urged believers in democracy to "champion your own faith as fearlessly as the communists . . . so the lamp of purity may be lit again and man can live in freedom and peace."

Popular Bill at the Russian Theater.

Raymond Moley's Analysis

Berlin's Industrial Production Is Factor

IN THE course of our stumbling through the Berlin crisis, a great deal has been said about saving or losing face. To many people, the whole situation epitomizes all the Russian, German, European war and peace problems. But little has been said about what Berlin is materially worth to us, to the Russians and to the Germans.

The problem comes down to basic economics.

As a center of production, Berlin before and perhaps during the war produced 9 per cent of all German production. But in certain lines the figures were much higher. When these figures are examined it becomes very clear why Berlin's industry is so essential to the maintenance of the Russian position in eastern Berlin and, in fact, in all of eastern Germany. Berlin produced 48 per cent of all German electrical power, 12 per cent of all machinery, 20 per cent of printing and paper, 35 per cent of garments, 19 per cent of fine mechanical and optical material and 10 per cent of all rubber.

The greater part of this production was in the zones now held by the Western powers. In the sectors of the Western allies are located some of the most famous German industries, such as Siemens and Halske, Telefunken and others.

To the Russians, production from the allied sectors of Berlin, as well as from the Allied-held areas of Germany, is sorely needed. Like pack rats they took much from their own area of occupation — dismantled factories which, ironically enough, might have contributed to a better bargaining position now.

They have subsequently been attempting to rebuild plants and to run them along the lines of their Soviet "trusts." In this they have not realized great success. They now find the production areas controlled by the Western allies essential to the maintenance of their own area.

Incentive For Agreement.

TALK of the possibility of Soviet Russia's allowing the "poor Berliners" to starve does not jibe with hard-headed reason. Surely the bolsheviks are aware of the fact that in order to get materials from the allied zone, food for workers and coal for factories must be supplied.

In their own country they have had ample opportunity to observe this rule at work. They simply could not permit Western Berlin to starve.

On the other hand, the Western allies have a stake in bringing exports from Berlin into reasonable relation with imports to Berlin, although the generals may not realize this.

From an economic point of view we must decide whether the admirable, if expensive, airlift performs this function.

Further, we must recognize the full potency of our bargaining position. And when the UN discussions end in a deadlock as they have in the past there is no reason to assume that Soviet Russia and the West will have exhausted possibilities for a Berlin settlement.

As long as the economic ABC's of Berlin exist, there will be a strong incentive for agreement on both sides. It is not unlikely that the utilization of the industries in Berlin will play a major part in the final solution of the Berlin crisis.

Washington Calling

Is Dulles 'Right Man'?

By MARQUIS CHILDS

WASHINGTON—Although the inauguration of a new president is more than three months off, a remarkable pulling and hauling match is already on over the position of secretary of state in what will presumably be a Dewey cabinet. Rarely, if ever, has such a contest begun so far in advance of the counting of the votes.

Central figure in the race for the prize is Governor Dewey's close friend and intimate adviser on foreign policy, John Foster Dulles. Until recently it was regarded as a certainty beyond any doubt that Dulles would be Dewey's secretary of state.

But of late he has been the target of attacks that have come from two directions. From both the left and the right and for entirely opposite reasons the crossfire has concentrated on Dulles.

To the left and especially the extreme left, Dulles is a terrifying Halloween bogey representing monopoly, capitalism, intriguing cartels and sinister fascist conspiracy. At the Wallace third-party convention in Philadelphia speakers were always sure of getting an angry hiss out of their audience at the mere mention of Dulles' name.

Quite apart from this absurd caricature, honest liberals have been concerned with Dulles' far-reaching corporate connections through the law firm of Sullivan & Cromwell of which he is senior partner. Sullivan & Cromwell has so many foreign clients that it is organized like the state department with separate desks for each foreign nation. Since those clients were the rich and powerful of Europe before World War II, they were closely linked to the cartels that dominated most of Europe's trade in the period between the wars.

This lends color to the picture of Dulles as a mastermind directing the machinations of the combines that reached across national boundaries and ignored totalitarian ideologies when it was convenient to do so. These critics on the left represent Dulles as seeking to put the old cartels back together again.

On the Other Hand.

THE CRITICS on the right do the Dulles portrait in entirely different colors. They represent him as a churchly figure, absorbed in the peace efforts of the Federal Council of Churches, practically eligible for a halo.

This man, they say, can't possibly be tough enough with Russia. In the bosom of the Federal Council he is susceptible to pacifism and who knows what dangerous radicalism.

In part, at least, this line comes from one or more of the rival candidates for the job. Strange as it may seem to those who have watched him in action in the Senate holding the appropriation axe over the budget for the state department and the European recovery program, one of these candidates is reported to be the ambitious Senator Styles Bridges of [illegible] hampshire.

Here in Washington he is credited with leaking the story that Dulles was responsible for the appointment of Alger Hiss, accused before the House un-American activities committee of being a communist, to head the Carnegie Foundation.

Opposition to Dulles comes also from those both in Washington and Berlin who are ardent in support of Gen. Lucius D. Clay's policy of firmness in the German capital.

They look on Dulles with dark suspicion. A memorandum of an off-the-record talk which he made before the Overseas Press club in New York was sent to Berlin and is frequently cited as proof of his opposition to the Clay policy.

In spite of all this, perhaps because of it, Dulles remains the choice of his long-time friend for the key foreign policy post.

Preparing Large Lend-Lease Program

By DREW PEARSON

WASHINGTON—It's being kept very hush-hush behind tightly locked Pentagon portals, but, no matter who is elected, the department of national defense is preparing a large-scale military lend-lease program to be presented to Congress next January.

The program is vague only regarding the final amount to be asked of Congress. Estimates by those in the know range from 4½ to 6 billion dollars.

Behind all the conversations held by England, France and the Benelux countries on how to stop the Red army has been one large question. How much will the United States contribute?

The men in the Pentagon are now preparing three separate projects to be put up to Congress.

1. A straight lend-lease program under which we would ship overseas arms and equipment for about 25 French, British and Benelux armored ground divisions.

2. Establishment of semi-permanent air and ground force bases in Italy, France, England, Western Germany, Belgium and the Netherlands.

3. A Canadian-American plan for a ring of air bases stretching through Norway-Greenland-Alaska in order to block Soviet air attacks across the Arctic.

Also under consideration is the standardization of all armaments used by members of the western military alliance.

Automatic War Declaration

THE Western European nations are also urging Pentagon officials to ask Congress for the right to declare war automatically in case any of the Western European countries are attacked by Russia. Thus far Secretary Forrestal and his aides are balking.

One headache plaguing the Pentagon planners is the terrific cost of a new lend-lease program when piled on top of the Marshall Plan. Next year the Marshall Plan will cost about 5 billion.

Add another 5 billion for lend-lease military aid, plus another 12 billion for our own military establishment plus 5 billion for interest on the national debt, plus 4 billion for veterans' benefits and you get the grand total of 31 billion dollars.

This is all before any money is appropriated for the normal functions of government.

While the program is being kept hush-hush until after the election, top Pentagon officials have been holding informal conversations with Dewey advisers via Ferdinand Eberstadt, the Wall Street banker sometimes mentioned as Dewey's secretary of national defense.

Dewey On Ball

IT IS NO secret that Dewey dislikes Minnesota's bearish Senator Joe Ball, now having a tough fight for re-election against Democratic candidate Hubert Humphrey, mayor of Minneapolis. But when Vic Johnston, former Stassen man now working for Dewey, reported that Ball was in trouble, Dewey's reaction was to let bygones be bygones.

"You don't owe Joe Ball anything," Johnston remarked.

"That's all right," snapped Dewey. "We've got to elect him."

Marshall's Problems

IT ISN'T the main reason for his return to Washington, but one thing Secretary Marshall is reporting to President Truman is his difficulties with the French and British.

He has had a much tougher time than the press dispatches indicate keeping our western allies united regarding a firm Russian policy.

French Foreign Minister Schuman has been especially hard to keep in line. With a large bloc of communist deputies to worry about, he tried to persuade Marshall that the United Nations should order new Big 4 diplomatic talks instead of a showdown before the UN. For a time Schuman was quite insistent, argued that if the UN ordered Russia to lift the blockade it would get nowhere. Russia would merely ignore it.

Marshall argued differently. He pointed to the months of patient palaver with the Russians, said it was obvious Moscow intended to do nothing except stall.

For a time, the British also leaned toward French appeasement. But Marshall was adamant. Politely, firmly, he made it clear that the United States was committed to staying in Berlin. If we got out of Berlin, we would soon be out of Germany.

With the United States spending billions on European recovery, it was important to remember that if the Allies pulled out of Germany there could be no recovery. Thus ran Marshall's argument. In the end, the French agreed.

Note—Foreign Minister Schuman's chief trouble is that the Communists have skillfully spread the idea that the Marshall Plan is merely an instrument to prepare for war with Russia. "America will fight until the last drop of French blood," the communists are preaching U. S. propaganda to explain the motives of the Marshall Plan has not been able to combat this.

Viewing the National Scene

In 'Forgotten Man' Role

By THOMAS L. STOKES

WASHINGTON — This is an essay on political loyalty that is offered as of no special significance, except as a sign of the times.

It is a truism that when an institution such as a great political party starts to crack up and disintegrate those who have gone along happily with it in flush times and benefited from its success begin to look anxiously after their own skins exclusively and do what is necessary to hang on to their jobs, and let the party go hang. Such, for example, as members of Congress.

Martin Dies of Texas once remarked good-humoredly to his fellow members of the House, and perhaps with the exaggeration of the wit, that not many of them could make in private life the $10,000 they were then getting as members of Congress. It was during debate on a proposed pay increase for Congress.

Those were the days when Martin Dies, who long since has left Congress, was a genial and jovial wag and the self-confessed and self-appointed president of the Demagogues club, and before he became a stern, serious unrelenting vigilante as chairman of the un-American activities committee, after which he lost his sense of humor.

Since then he has gone back home and the pay for members of Congress has been raised so that it is a fairly nice living even with inflation and the current price of lamb chops.

All of which leads to what probably would be called "summertime Democrats" by good old Tom Paine—if he were around. Reference is to members of Congress, or would-be members of Congress, who are carefully avoiding any mention of the head of the ticket, Harry S. Truman, in their campaigns, but running on their own, for themselves alone, fearful that any connection with the head of the party might disturb the voters and bring their downfall, too. They are keeping it a secret that Harry Truman also is standing for re-election. Never heard of the fellow. What was the name, please?

It's Happened Before.

A RECENT trip across the country disclosed a number of these "summertime Democrats."

Among them are some who once proclaimed the magic name of Franklin D. Roosevelt at every opportunity as a cover-all for their own natural delinquencies, including some southerners who rarely, if ever, supported Mr. Roosevelt in Congress in Washington—though they never told the voters that, naturally, FDR was a winner and his coat-tails were broad and strong of fiber. Harry Truman's coat-tail is virtually threadbare and no piece of cloth to clutch in this year of grace.

Thus, of course, is no new phenomenon under the heavens. It just shows, as well as the public opinion polls, how it is with that once flourishing institution known as the Democratic party. Few minor Republican candidates were shouting the name of Herbert Hoover or grasping at his coat-tails in that dreary Republican summer and fall of 1932, either.

Harry Truman now knows how Herbert Hoover felt and it might be a subject for consolatory discussion if, as Mr. Hoover recently predicted, the two get together in that club of which the latter is now and has been for many years the only member—the Living Ex-President's club.

While some Democratic candidates just don't mention Mr. Truman, others are more blatant. Such as, for example, Senator Ed Johnson of Colorado who openly forecasts that Governor Dewey will carry his state, or Governor Lester Hunt of Wyoming, running for the Senate, who not only does not mention the President but not long ago welcomed his fellow governor and friend, Governor Earl Warren of California, as "the next vice-president of the United States."

Timely Editorial

Air Stunts Are Senseless.

R. M. Lee, president of the Wisconsin Civil Air Corps, is wholly right when he says that "air shows and stunting do not do aviation any good."

Mere "thrill shows," honestly proclaimed to be such, may have a place in the field of entertainment. Like automobile, motorcycle or midget auto races, they may continue to flourish. But the flying stunt show ought to be wholly separated from sound aviation activities. It should not in anywise be disguised as a "test" to determine the merits of planes or the possible accomplishments of sane fliers. The really worthy tests can be and are being made by test pilots under the auspices of the manufacturers or the military forces.—Milwaukee Journal.

Chinese Pheasants

By CALVIN A. BYERS

THE second boy likes to drive. We go, sometimes, to get the evening paper—and I sit beside him while he maneuvers the car. Last night, coming over the Honey Creek bridge, along our gravel road, a pair of ring-neck pheasants were in the weeds beside the road.

The young driver saw them first, and came to a sudden stop, then backed until we were within easy distance of the two—our presence did not frighten them.

The male pheasant's long tail stuck out of the weeds beside the road. The light reflected rainbow colors from his feathers and the two heads, his and his bronzy mate's, dodged up and down in unison. Then they broke up their palaver, and silently slipped under the tall weeds into the green pasture beyond, and thence to shelter of the stream bank.

The small brown hen picked up a juicy grasshopper, as she sped along, and waded into the edge of the lapping water to finish eating it. Neither of the birds attempted to fly. They were seemingly unafraid of our car—and they paid no notice to cattle grazing near. Often I have ridden on horseback among wild game birds along mountain trails. It is a pleasant way to study their habits.

"Ring-necks" were introduced into this country from China, in 1880 and became established well about 1882. They are plentiful in the corn country now—and I believe that wherever they move in the quails are driven out. I have noticed that some years we have quails in abundance, but not this year. Pheasants have taken over.

Suddenly surprised, the male will cry like a guinea fowl and take wing—flying high over briers and weeds to perch in a tree top.

One evening lately I saw a young fox chase a pheasant until the bird disdainfully took flight, and two hours later when I walked that way in the moonlight, he was still perched upon a high limb of a forest tree.

Foxes have better luck when the hatchlings are tiny. Then, just by waiting long enough, the youngsters reveal their hiding places and foxes get about half of them, on an average.

Game birds furnished the Indians with a prime source of food. Early settlers could knock over a meal almost anywhere in the forests or in their own back yards. Wild turkeys, heath hens, prairie chickens and various kinds of grouse made juicy eating.

The last of the heath hens became extinct in 1932, after belated attempts were made to save the species, by confining a few survivors in a sanctuary at Martha's Vineyard.

How Does 'Milady' Receive Her Flowers?

By MARION WEST

FLOWERS for my lady?

That seems easier said than done when my lady is somewhere off in California, or Alaska or even China. But this long distance service is being taken care of every day here in Mansfield by three local florists who are members of the Florists' Telegraph Delivery association.

One florist here even went so far as to say that from 15% to 20% of his business consists of telegraph orders. "And I have more incoming orders than outgoing," he added.

What are your chances of getting full value for your money when you send flowers by wire? One of our florists answered it this way.

"Like any other business, one complaint can give it a black eye. Only about 2% of our customers aren't satisfied, and in nine out of ten of these cases some adjustment is made."

The country is divided into units of approximately 100 miles by the association. This enables members to meet periodically and become acquainted.

"Since most of our business is carried on with Cleveland and Columbus, you know the people you're sending to are reputable, so it lessens the percentage of chiseling and fraud," a florist commented.

During the past year a tremendous impetus was given to the service. Although only nations within the allied sphere were included in the working organization, the generosity of servicemen was more than adequate compensation.

A Mansfield florist testified that one Easter alone he did a business of at least $1000 from men in the armed forces.

"One soldier telegraphed $20 for a corsage, and there isn't any corsage worth that amount. So I threw in an extra dozen roses to give him his money's worth," he said.

Roses are the most popular flower sent by telegraph. They're always in season, so little difficulty is encountered in ordering them.

Funerals constitute approximately 50% of a florist's business, and this same percentage holds true in telegraphing. Many people believe that if they can't attend, flowers are the best means of conveying what they feel.

This $30,000,000-a-year business remains pretty much of a mystery to the general public. Actually, it's just another public service set-up on a profit-making basis.

The manager of a flower shop here explained the functioning in this manner.

"The organization's central office in Detroit, operates as a clearing house. All orders must be sent there. They supply us with a magazine, "Florists' Telegraph Delivery News" which lists all member countries their respective cities and florists. A similar periodical, "The Handy Book," contains a listing of smaller cities and their nearest member cities.

"Twice a month we either send a check to the clearing house or they send one to us. This balances the orders we send against those we receive."

In order to become a member of the association it's necessary to meet certain standards. The refrigerator must be at least a minimum size, the store's appearance must be up to par and there must be adequate equipment to meet utility requirements.

An initial fee is paid to join, and an annual fee is contributed for services.

Telegraph is the most popular means of communication used for this service, with the telephone entering when speed is imperative. Cables are sent for overseas orders. Almost every country in the world is a member of the association, with the exception of Japan, Russia and the Russian dominated satellites.

Where does the profit to the individual florist enter the picture? One of our city's florists answered, "It's a reciprocal means of selling flowers. And what more can we ask for than that?"

HOROSCOPE

For Tuesday, October 12

THERE are most propitious indications of the fulfillment of desired hopes and wishes, with ambitious aims and aspirations rising to new heights of achievement. Marks of substantial encouragement and cooperation from those in influential places may be banked on. This gratifying condition may be brought about by particularly astute and shrewd planning with perhaps clever strategies, in which secret agreements may be prolific of cherished results. Intuition and imagination are stimulated and may be deftly utilized for realistic returns. The personality influence is strong

Those whose birthday it is, are assured a year of advancement and high accomplishment in which those in influence and position may be depended upon for substantial cooperation. These should be approached with tack and finesse, even wise strategies may be productive of surprising results in which inner or subtle forces seem to be at work behind the scenes. Ideals and exceptional ideas should be pursued under the inspiration of intuition as well as judicious use of personality.

A child born on this day has every promise of success, having the support of prominent and influential people. Its intuitions and aspirations are enhanced by secret forces with charm or unique or singular power.

Effort Made to Trace 'Invisible Government' of Frankfurter

NEW YORK — A journalist who tries to depict the structure and reveal the character of Felix Frankfurter's "invisible government" enjoys a freedom like that of a congressional committee. He may select information here and there and piece it together. But he does not have congressional immunity, so his sense of responsibility is greater for that reason alone to say nothing of others.

The American free press has accomplished many great reforms in this way. Most of the crusades were directed against the opposition of crooked prosecutors and courts.

It is very well to say that all these inquiries should be made under juridical conditions. But observe the conduct of the department of justice in mauling and destroying the case against crooks in the federal court and the federal district attorney's office in Newark, N. J.

The department of justice is defending itself by suppressing prosecution. Would you condemn the journalistic method in this case and hand over the whole mess to the guilty people who run the machinery of the grand juries and the courts?

My presentation of the Frankfurter case follows the journalistic method rather than the juridical, but it is conscientious and truthful.

Recently I cited an article from a little New York paper called the Catholic Worker wherein the essayist recalled that in 1937 he attended a lecture in Ford hall, Boston, by Harold J. Laski, of London, formerly a lecturer at Harvard and a contemporary of Frankfurter on the faculty.

I cited routine references to Laski in the New York Times as an apologist for communism. I reported that he had lost a suit in England which turned on the question whether he had or hadn't countenanced violent revolution.

The writer in the Catholic Worker said Frankfurter, not yet a justice, introduced Laski to the Boston audience in a way "that seemed very significant to us. He declared that the day that he looked forward to in the year with the most joy was the day when Mr. Laski came to stay with him in his home."

Frankfurter not only lobbied himself onto the Supreme court but lobbied his senescent old friend Henry L. Stimson into the war department after Alf Landon had angrily spurned Roosevelt's attempt to seduce him as he had seduced the vain and flabby Frank Knox into the navy department, and simply absorb his political opposition.

We know that Roert P. Patterson, a nominal Republican, became assistant secretary, undersecretary and finally, in 1945, secretary of war.

Patterson is an alumnus of Harvard law school, whose graduates literally infested the government. And the army under Stimson and Patterson deliberately infected millions of recruits with essentials of the communist party line in the guise of patriotic "indoctrination.

Patterson even went so far as to say that all he knew about the Lincoln brigade in the Spanish civil war was that they had been brave soldiers against fascism.

Mr. Patterson should have known that the Lincoln brigade was a communist army in which some young American idealists had been slaughtered by their communist superiors because they discovered the truth and rebelled.

We know that Frankfurter lobbied Alger Hiss into the state department which sent him to Yalta with the dying President where he, Hiss, sat in at the final conference, the most distastrous in the history of western civilization, with Stalin and Roosevelt.

Soil Plan Ballots Available

County Agent Has Absentee Tickets

Richland county land owners who can't get to the polls Oct. 22 to vote on the question of a soil conservation district for Richland county may obtain absentee ballots now at his office in the court house, County Agent C. N. McGrew said today.

Owners of three acres or more of land outside incorporated areas may vote on the question. Voting will take place at all the township voting places from 1 to 9 p. m. on the voting day. A majority of 65 per cent is required for passage.

McGrew said that on a recent trip through the county he noticed that highway workers were removing tons of topsoil from road ditches. He said the sight was not unusual and there were few farms in Richland county where the effects of erosion are not evident.

The county agent said farm gullies were being filled with soil taken from the ditches, but added that that did little to restore the productivity of the barren soil where "sheet erosion" had done its damaging work. He said that filling of the gullies in no way corrected the faulty soil and water management program which had permitted the topsoil to wash away in the first place.

McGrew said that land loses its productivity in other ways, too, such as cropping level land with rotations "short" on deep-rooted legume grass sods.

FILE PETITION

A vote on the question of a soil conservation district for the county was set up after 300 farmers petitioned the state soil conservation committee for the establishment of such a district.

The steering committee, working to bring about the establishment of the district, includes Kenneth Nixon, A. A. Mellick, Warren Smith, Waldo Crum, A. L. Lockheart and Harvey Snyder.

Purpose of a soil conservation district is to aid farmers to work together in maintaining and improving the productivity of their farms through proper land use, plus the practical application of necessary soil building and conservation practices.

All landowners and operators of land containing three or more acres are entitled to services of a district, but no one is compelled to use the services. There is no taxation as a result and services are free, McGrew said.

Hurt as Train Smashes Auto

BUCYRUS—Harold W. Musselman, 66, was confined to City hospital here today with multiple lacerations of the face, hands, arm and knee, as a result of an accident at the West Mansfield street crossing of the Pennsylvania railroad at 6:30 a. m. today.

Musselman was driving to work at the Ohio Locomotive Train company, when his car was hit by eastbound Pennsylvania passenger train No. 44 which was slowing up for the Bucyrus station stop.

Musselman told police that rain had steamed over his windshield and he had failed to see the train. His car was badly damaged.

Hospital officials said today his condition was good.

Rural School Burglarized

Sheriff's deputies began an investigation today of the entrance and ransacking of Windsor school discovered at the opening of school today by Mrs. Anna Clever, Windsor teacher.

Deputies said entrance to the school had been gained by breaking out a panel in the front door and unlocking the door. Contents of the teacher's desk and many of the pupils' desks were scattered about the room. Deputies said that obscene pictures had been drawn on the black board.

Labeling the incident as "pure orneryness," deputies warned that any acts of vandalism will be prosecuted severely.

Mrs. McQuestion Dies In Nebraska

Mrs. Laura H. McQuestion, former resident of Mansfield and widow of Nelson A. McQuestion, died at her home in Ainsworth, Neb., early Sunday.

She is survived by one son, L. H. McQuestion of Highland Park, Mich.

Delays Action On Bus Route Change

Service-Safety Director Earl T. Garrison indicated today that no action would be taken on the Mansfield Rapid Transit, Inc., request for bus route changes until he has had a chance to meet with city council's utilities committee and possibly company officials.

West side residents living on Park avenue west, beyond Linden road, have protested that the bus route change would end service on Park avenue west from Linden road to the city limits.

The bus company has asked Garrison to approve three route changes. One would combine the South Main-Reformatory run, a second would combine North-Main and Glessner. On the Glessner avenue run, the bus would travel as far west as Marion avenue and then go south to Cline avenue east on Cline to Sturges avenue and return.

The third change, over which the protests are being made, would route the Park avenue west bus to Glenwood boulevard, south to Maple street, west to South Linden road and back to Park avenue west.

Those protesting the change argue that any "additional service to any city district should be in the form of an increase to the overall bus service to the city and should not be made at the expense of service to another district."

Other protestors claim that South Linden road is not wide enough, or in the proper condition to permit a bus to run on it.

The bus company has asked that council, as well as Garrison approve the changes, although the franchise gives the power solely to service-safety director.

Mansfield Rapid Transit has asked that the changes be approved by Oct. 15. Garrison said today, however, that he would not act independently, and would talk with the protesting west side residents, the council and the bus company before he acts.

861 Bikes Registered

One-hundred and 96 Hedges street pupils registered their bicycles with the police department Saturday, bringing the total registration to 861, Paul Martin, police identification officer reported today.

He announced that Prospect and Woodland school pupils will be registered Saturday, in addition to West Fifth, Newman, Bowman, Bushnell and Hedges pupils who were not able to register at their assigned times.

Martin warned bicycle owners against removing the metal license tags from the spot where the police have sealed them.

"I have reports that several boys and girls have removed the sealed tags and placed them on the rear fender or some place else. As soon as the registration is complete, we've going to crack down on anyone who has tampered with the seal," Martin said.

"Any persons found with a bike with a broken seal will have to re-register and pay an additional 25 cents," he warned.

Held In 2 Auto Thefts

A 24-year-old Georgia man, apparently bent on getting a car at any cost, was apprehended by Ashland police late yesterday in the second car he was believed to have stolen within three hours.

The Georgia resident, who also gave police a Crestline address, was held in city jail today pending investigation.

According to state patrol officers the first car stolen belonging to C. E. Dudte, 170 Elm street, was found on State Route 314 near the Pennsylvania railroad tracks early Sunday evening. Officers said the car was completely demolished and had been rolled over.

Dudte reported the car stolen at 6:58 p. m.

James L. Brown of Shelby, who happened by the scene shortly after the accident, told officers he picked the driver up and brought him back to Mansfield, where he urged the man to go to General hospital.

Brown said the driver of the wrecked car refused and asked to be let out of the car. Brown said the man was cut about the face and head.

At 7:38 p. m., Paul A. Hassig of Ft. Wayne, Ind., reported to police that his car was stolen while parked in front of 126 Rowland avenue. On an alarm from Mansfield authorities, Ashland police picked up the Georgia man 10 minutes later in Ashland.

HOROSCOPE

For Tuesday, October 12

THERE are most propitious indications of the fulfillment of desired hopes and wishes, with ambitious aims and aspirations rising to new heights of achievement. Marks of substantial encouragement and cooperation from those in influential places may be banked on. This gratifying condition may be brought about by particularly astute and shrewd planning with perhaps clever strategies, in which secret agreements may be prolific of cherished results. Intuition and imagination are stimulated and may be deftly utilized for realistic returns. The personality influence is strong.

Those whose birthday it is, are assured a year of advancement and high accomplishment in which those in inflence and position may be depended upon for substantial cooperation. These should be approached with tack and fines,es even wise strategies may be productive of surprising results in which inner or subtle forces seem to be at work behind the scenes. Ideals and exceptional ideas should be pursued under the inspiration of intuition as well as judicious use of personality.

A child born on this day has every promise of success, having the support of prominent and influential people. Its intuitions and aspirations are enhanced by secret forces with charm or unique or singular power.

When grandmother was a girl, she had a beauty trick which women today might very well copy. Make a habit of carrying some prepared chalk (any drugstore has it) in a little pill box in your handbag. Just before any important occasion when you want your smile to look its loveliest, rub the chalk over your teeth and make them glisten!
